City Council votes 3 to 2 not to go 7 to 5

City rejects recommendation to cut Economic Development Board to five members

By J.R. Deaton

EL CERRITO — On a 3-2 vote the City Council last week rejected an Economic Development Board recommendation to reduce the number of board members from seven to five.

Mayor Larry Damon said he saw no compelling reason to change the number at this time and Councilman Mark Friedman stressed a need for ethnic diversity on the board.

"At its meeting of July 18, 2001, the EDB discussed the board composition and the number of meetings per month," said EDB Chairwoman Denise Navellier in a July 24 letter to the council.

"The board voted 5-0 to keep the composition at five members with two of the five members being of the business community, the president of the Chamber of Commerce and a business owner."

Navellier also said the board voted unanimously to keeping its meetings at two a month. She said the second meeting of the month may be a "study session type meeting" with business owners.

Community Development Director Jill Keimach, in a report to the council, said that the EDB has met 23 times since its first meeting Aug. 23, 2000. Due to family-related issues and time-commitment issues, three EDB members have resigned since its inception, Keimach said. One vacancy was filled, but two posts remain vacant. The board has been operating with only five members since April. The City Council had asked the EDB for comments about the five versus seven-member board.

"A year ago when the board was first composed of seven, I was certainly impressed with the diversity of economic and political thought that I felt the council had assembled in this board," said Christopher Todd Ruetz, vice chair of the EDB. Ruetz said that with attrition

Albany mayor resting following surgery

Maris expects to be back in action when the Albany City Council reconvenes

By Matt Petersen
STAFF WRITER

ALBANY — Mayor Allan Maris is resting comfortably at home after undergoing successful surgery for prostate cancer at Kaiser Hospital in Oakland on Friday, Aug. 10.

The avid outdoorsman admitted to "feeling pretty good" and said that he was itching to get back and exercise just days after his three-hour operation. "I hope to swim again in a couple of weeks," he said.

Maris said that a small tumor was detected in mid-April and that it was caught early. He is awaiting the results of a pathology report that will show whether or not all the cancer was removed but says all signs point to a successful recovery.

He spoke of his condition the day before his operation at the annual Solano Stroll kickoff party. "I have prostate cancer and I'm going into surgery tomorrow," said Maris, who turns 60 in September. "It's at a very early stage and it hasn't spread anywhere so they have to cut a little bit out. I'm going to be out of commission for a couple of weeks with a sore belly," he laughed.

With council chambers shutting down for the traditional August period in August, Maris has a three-and-a-half weeks of recovery time until the next council meeting. He says that he fully expects to be present at the Sept. 4 meeting, as well as be back to his duties at MacGregor High School where he serves as a part-time math and science aid.

The last time Maris had surgery of this magnitude was when he had his appendix pulled at the age of 12, and likens the similarities in recovery. "My memories of that are still pretty vivid," he said, although admitting more of a sense of vulnerability this time around.

Maris made the announcement early to the rest of the council members who all had a chance to wish him well before leaving for the month-long hiatus. Councilwoman Peggy Thomsen said that he stayed dedicated to his involvement in the community in the days leading up to the operation. He held office hours on Aug. 8 at Cafe Eclectica for a question and answer session for the public.

"He's going to do fine and be back at the helm soon," said Thomsen. "He's such a great guy and an incredible leader of Albany."

Said Councilman Mario DiPrisco: "Our thoughts are with him, and with everything that I've heard, he's going to fight through this. He's a pretty tough guy."

According to the American Cancer Society Web site, prostate cancer is the most common form of cancer besides all skin cancers. It estimates that by the end of 2001, approximately 198,000 new cases of prostate cancer will be diagnosed in the United States and will strike one in six American males.

At the kickoff party, Maris had one thing to say to the community. "Take your PSA (Prostatic Specific Antigen — a type of blood test)."

One hot rod!

KENSINGTON'S TIM SMYK leans over to get a closer look at the 1941 Willy on display at the first annual Albany Auto Show held last Sunday at Golden Gate Fields. The car, owned by Corky Vaara of San Pablo, won a prize in the best street-rod, pre-1943 category. "I've had the car for six years," said Vaara. "It's the best investment I've made. I love it." Smyk and the rest of the auto show observers obviously loved it, too.

Manholes an issue in El Cerrito repaving project

By J.R. Deaton

EL CERRITO — Seventeen city streets will be repaved under a $926,950 contract approved by City Council last week.

But the city and the Stege Sanitary District are at odds over which of them will pay to raise the manholes while the repaving is going on. The contract, with Windsor Fuel Co. of Windsor, Calif., calls for a paving technology city engineer Steve Strapac described as "long-lasting and quick to do."

"This second phase of paving rehabilitation work will utilize a relatively new paving technology known as ultra thin bonded, polymer-modified asphalt (PMA)

Piedmont Choirs hosts singing summer camp for talented youngsters

Blend the harmony of 115 young musical voices with the serenity of the redwood forest in Sonoma County and a center bursting with recreation, and the resonant melody will be the sweet sounds of Piedmont Choirs Music Camp.

"Camp for me is like a musical seed; it really opened my eyes to music — meeting different people and working hard at becoming a better musician," said Julie Fabrizio of Montclair, a first-year counselor-in-training at the camp 75 miles north of San Francisco near Occidental.

Fabrizio, a senior at Skyline High School and a voice in Piedmont Choirs for a decade, shared how she made giant steps in music during the four years she attended camp as a student.

"The camp is curriculum-based. Kids generally have four to six hours of music and voice instruction per day. They tend to spend their days in rehearsal and in music theory classes, then in the afternoon they have recreation. Also, they have voice lessons every other day," explained Robert Geary, co-founder and artistic director of Piedmont Choirs and the camp's director.

Art Kelly, executive director for Piedmont Choirs, illustrated how the students grow in music during their camp experience.

"Camp really is a launching pad into the choir year. It's a high point for the kids where they can experience fun, develop new friendships, increase their self-confidence and expand their vocal training; there is an overall growth that the kids enjoy," said Kelly.

Music theory, learning the principles and methods of music, means wonderful things to many of the musicians attending camp.

"Theory is learning to read music and also write it. For example, if you wanted to learn to sing something, theory would help you learn it faster. Here, you have more time to learn because you're sleeping here," said Nora Orton, a Piedmont resident and a fourth grader at Bentley School in Oakland.

This year's Solano Stroll figures to be all fun and games

By James Carter
CORRESPONDENT

The Solano Stroll will be a "whole new game" this year, one that may determine which local politician is the weakest link and who wants to be a millionaire.

The annual street festival, now in its 27th year, will combine elements of fairs past, including the kick-off parade and its eccentric blend of pulsating music and samba dancers sharing the sunshine with wacky cars, the pink man, kids from Albany Little League, and scores of other participants.

Expected to draw 100,000 people from around the Bay Area, the Solano Stroll will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 9.

In the spirit of this year's game theme, hundreds of folks are expected to strut and stroll in costumes ranging from lusty tomb raiders and cyber punks to queens and pawns, Giants and Warriors, bowlers and card

Interesting morning at care home

ROXANNE WILEY
Albany Chamber

I spent an interesting morning the other day visiting one of the RN3 Care homes. I was greeted by the owner, Rosa Cheng, and she ushered me into this wonderful shared living space. They offer facilities for about 12 guests, and the other two homes offer room for fewer guests.

It was about 11 a.m. and there was a flourish of activity. The more ambulatory folks were out in the large hallway, which is a big meeting area. This is a coed place, and they were finishing reading the morning papers and gabbing away just like any dormitory anywhere. Just a few were still in their rooms, either getting a late start or not quite as spunky as the rest.

We gathered some of the folks from the hallway into the spacious living room, where others were already watching their favorite soap on a big screen television, to take a picture. They were quite curious as to who I was and what I was doing there. The fact that I wanted to take their picture seemed to please them, except one lady who had another agenda — she fell asleep in the recliner. I guess I have that affect on some people.

As it turns out my flash must have been on the fritz, so I cannot show you the lovely people. But I can name them: Virginia Romain, Florence Oliveria, Jessie Van Someren, Pauline Rito, Nadine Starbuck, Olive Linehan and Joseph Gurule, who are residents, and Carmen Diaz, an aide.

Rosa is a licensed caregiver, an RN with 20 years of experience who is a genuine caring person. In her culture, older people are revered, and it certainly shows in this home.

If you would like information about these wonderful havens for our elderly, call 526-2533. The homes are located on Cornell (the business management center), Masonic and Garfield.

I had to leave before lunchtime, but I did sit for a while in the wonderful sunny dining room where I could look through to the kitchen, watching Ely Poitier making sandwiches for lunch. What a nice place.

Disabled parking policy in place

■ Residents applying for 'blue curb' status in front of their homes must meet a list of qualifications first

By J.R. Deaton
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — The city became a bit more accessible for people with disabilities. The City Council unanimously approved a policy to provide for on-street "blue curb" parking in front of the homes of qualified residents with mobility problems.

"The purpose of this policy is to provide a process of granting residential on-street parking in front of residences where the off-street parking is not accessible to a resident because of their mobility-related disability," the approved policy states. Applicants will have to have proof of address and mobility impairment and will have to have a reason why the off-street parking at their residence is inadequate.

"Using off-street parking for another use is not a valid reason," the policy notes. "For example, it would not be valid to request a disabled parking space because the applicant's driveway is used for another car."

There will be no cost to the applicant for the application, curb painting and sign installation. In his report to the City Council, City Attorney Howard Stern said the program is expected to cost the city about $4,000 per year. The residential blue curb would not be considered a "private space," and may be used by any vehicle with a disabled person placard or sticker on a first-come, first-served basis.

Robert Coleman, president of Albany-El Cerrito Access, a group that works to improve public access for the disabled, said the council's vote was important. "This means people can park their cars by their house," he said. "I know people who have needed this for a while."

Councilman Mark Friedman praised the policy as "rational and comprehensive" and timely. "It's clear there's an unidentified need out there and it's a need that could get greater in the coming years," Friedman said.

Target purchase raises questions

EL CERRITO — The fact that Target Corp. has purchased the empty Montgomery Ward building on Macdonald Avenue in Richmond has raised questions about the company's plans for the nearby El Cerrito Target Store at 11450 San Pablo Ave. Community Development Director Jill Keimach said that things bode well for El Cerrito.

"The city is fairly confident that because of the good quality of the site, with freeway access and BART access, we're not concerned that Target would be leaving the El Cerrito site," Keimach said. "What Target has said is that in the short run what they're going to do is use the Montgomery Ward building for storage during the holiday season," she added. "They haven't really figured out what they're going to do in the long run."

"My sense is that the lot size is big in Richmond, but if you compare the visibility from the Richmond (site) with the BART train and easy access to the freeway, I think the El Cerrito site is a very good site," Keimach said. "Montgomery Ward doesn't have BART — and that's 6,000 people going through BART every day."

"My sense is it's not going to be another Target; it will be another one of their stores," such as a Mervyn's, Keimach said. "It's hard to tell and they're not really saying much right now."

Target Corp., formerly known as the Dayton Hudson Corp., is the corporate parent of Target Stores, Mervyn's California and Marshall Field's.

POLICE REPORTS

Albany man arrests himself

By K. Osborn
CORRESPONDENT

ALBANY - On the afternoon of Aug. 6, a 42-year-old Albany man came to the police station to request a copy of a police report on himself. He was found to have a "no bail" warrant out of Oakland for battery. He was arrested and transported to the Berkeley jail.

■ At about 5 p.m. on Aug. 6 a resident on the 1100 block of Neilson Street reported that her white '77 Oldsmobile Cutlass had been stolen within the previous 90 minutes. There were no witnesses.

■ On the morning of Aug. 7 Albany officers responded to the 800 block of Talbot Avenue on reports of loud yelling at a neighbor's house. Officers contacted a 29-year-old Oakland woman and a 46-year-old Albany man who were involved in a verbal dispute over money, possibly owed for narcotics. The woman was found to have an outstanding warrant for possession of drug paraphernalia and was found to be under the influence. She was arrested and transported to Santa Rita jail.

■ On the morning of Aug. 7 a resident on the 800 block of Madison Street reported that during the night thieves had stolen rose plants from his garden. There were no witnesses.

At about 11 p.m. on Aug. 7 a resident on the 700 block of Adams Street reported that vandals had thrown a 5-pound chunk of concrete at her gray jeep, causing dents in the top and hood and the windshield to break. There were no witnesses.

■ At about 9 p.m. on Aug. 8 a Richmond man reported that his black '77 Honda motorcycle had been stolen while parked in a parking lot on the 900 block of San Pablo Avenue. There were no witnesses.

■ On the afternoon of Aug. 9 a resident on the 900 block of Peralta Avenue reported that vandals had rifled through boxes and threw a brick through the window of her home. There were no witnesses.

■ At about 8 p.m. on Aug. 9 Albany officers responded to 535 Pierce St. on reports from the security guard that he had a subject under citizen's arrest. Officers learned that the 44-year-old homeless man from Pleasant Hill had been asked to leave three times previously and had refused to leave when told to on this occasion. Officers cited him and released him with a promise to appear.

■ At about 11 p.m. on Albany officers responded to a café at the Albany Bowl on 500 block of San Pablo Ave. on reports of a subject causing disturbance and refusing to leave. Officers contacted a 30-year-old Richmond man who was yelling at employees and throwing catsup and mustard on the floor and walls. He was arrested for fighting and loud offensive language, cited and released with a notice to appear.

■ During the week of Albany officers towed nine vehicles, responded to five alarms, attended to two deceased animals, assisted people who were locked out of their house or car and responded to four reports of a barking dog. In the domestic arena, officers responded to one standby for civil disturbances and 58 domestic assists. Officers stopped 17 vehicles and/or pedestrians, issued 10 citations and 54 warnings and helped follow the speed limit on Buchanan Street!) Albany police officer/paramedics responded to three fire calls and 15 medical emergencies.

Man held in Target watch theft

By J.R. Deaton
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — On Aug. 7 about 11 a.m. a 57-year-old Berkeley man entered the San Pablo Avenue Target store carrying a brown briefcase. He reportedly went to the store's jewelry department, opened several packages containing wristwatches, put the wristwatches in his briefcase, then left the store. The suspect and his ticking brown briefcase were detained by Target security and held for police.

■ On Aug. 11 at 12:55 p.m. two San Pablo residents were arrested for possession of stolen property. A 20-year-old suspect and a 27-year-old suspect were observed by an El Cerrito man to be leaving his neighbor's house in the 5300 block of Cypress Avenue. The owner of the residence told officers that he did not know the suspects and that they did not have permission to be on his property. Both suspects were stopped by police. The younger suspect was found to be in possession of property that was reported stolen in a previous San Pablo burglary.

■ During a police search on Aug. 10 at 7:48 p.m. a 38-year-old El Cerrito woman on parole was found to be in possession of a controlled substance. The woman was in the area of Moeser Lane and Avis Drive.

■ On Aug. 9 at 1:36 p.m. police responded to a report of a residential burglary in progress in the 700 block of Ashbury Avenue. The first officer at the scene confronted two suspects walking away from the home as the home's alarm was sounding. The officer was able to stop and arrest one of the suspects, but the other fled on foot and eluded capture. The arrested suspect is an 18-year-old Richmond man. The suspects apparently knocked at the door to see if anyone was home and burgled the home after determining it was unoccupied, the report says. "This is a common pattern with burglaries of homes," the police report notes. "Anyone witnessing similar events involving suspicious persons in their neighborhoods are encouraged to report this to the police immediately."

■ On Aug. 7 at 5:12 p.m. an 18-year-old Richmond resident and a 20-year-old El Sobrante resident were arrested for armed robbery. The pair had been apprehended by two officers on a BART train at the North Berkeley BART Station. The two suspects had earlier approached three people on the Ohlone Greenway north of Stockton Avenue. The 18-year-old suspect reportedly brandished a firearm and one victim was ordered to drop her purse and another had his cell phone removed from his belt. The third victim did not have any property to take.

■ On Aug. 4 at 11:10 a.m. an attempted auto burglary was reported. Somebody had used a crowbar or similar tool to pry at the passenger side camper door of a 1976 Dodge Sportsman Camper. The vehicle was parked on the street in the 6800 block of Kenilworth Avenue. The would-be burglar was not able to pry open the door and the cost to repair the camper door was estimated at $200. There were no witnesses.

■ On Aug. 4 between 10:45 a.m. and 11:20 a.m. at the Prospect Sierra School parking lot off Avis Street somebody pried the driver's door handle lock assemblage partially out of the door of a 1993 Toyota Camry. Police report the vandal used a quarter-inch flat blade instrument. No entry was made and the cost to replace the damaged door lock was estimated at $500.

■ On Aug. 4 about 12:45 p.m. a 49-year-old Richmond woman was arrested at the San Pablo Avenue Target Store for petty theft with priors. The woman allegedly placed items from the store inside her purse and then left the store without paying. She was placed under citizen's arrest by Target store security and police were called. During booking it was discovered that the woman had a prior conviction for petty theft.

■ On Aug. 3 at 5:26 p.m. during a traffic stop near the Ashbury Avenue/Richmond Street intersection, a 35-year-old San Pablo man was found to be in possession of more than an ounce of marijuana and paraphernalia for smoking controlled substances.

■ On Aug. 2 about 11:20 a.m. somebody called to threaten a woman working at a check-cashing business in the 11100 block of San Pablo Avenue. Police told the unknown caller, posing as a suspect in a robbery case, to stay off the business to threaten the woman.

■ Sometime between July 28 at 5 p.m. and July 29 at 8:30 a.m. somebody entered an unlocked Dodge Caravan parked on the street in the 8000 block of Terrace Drive and stole a CD player. There were no witnesses.

■ On July 28 between 7:30 a.m. and 8 a.m. somebody stole a wheelchair valued at $1,000 from a medical mobility supply business in the 10900 block of San Pablo Avenue.

■ On July 28 between 4:30 p.m. and 5:13 p.m. an unknown person removed a bicycle from the bicycle rack affixed to the rear of an automobile parked in the driveway of a home on the 1500 block of Elm Street. The thief then fled northbound on the stolen bicycle.

Alta Bates Summit CEO announces resignation

w Irwin Hansen has led the combined medical center since the 1999 merger

By Chris Metinko
STAFF WRITER

Irwin Hansen announced esday he will resign as presi- and chief executive officer Alta Bates Summit Medical ter.

The resignation is effective ..

Hansen, 58, said the decision leave comes at the right time both the Oakland-based med- al center and his own career.

"There's never an ideal time leave a job you love, but as a sult of the hard work of the rd, management and physi- leadership, we've initiated a ategic plan for the future," nsen said in a written state- nt. "We now have the road in place to take the medical ter to a new level. Despite the allenges ... ahead, Alta Bates mmit will remain the premier alth care organization in the st Bay."

Warren Kirk, currently chief erating officer, will assume re- nsibilities as interim CEO, d Lawrence Fox, chair of the a Bates Summit board of ectors.

Hansen became CEO of Alta tes Summit when the two dical centers merged in 1999. fore that, he had served as O of Summit since 1993.

The merger allowed Sutter alth, Alta Bates' parent com- y, to combine Summit and a Bates into a single not-for- fit medical center with cam- uses in Berkeley and Oakland. the time, the merger came un- r attack from organized labor, mmunity advocates and East y officials concerned that it uld stifle competition, raise costs and reduce services. Attorney General Bill Lockyer tried unsuccessfully get a temporary injunction to halt the merger.

> "He's far more community-minded than most other CEOs. In that way, he was unique among CEOs."
> — Rose Ann DeMoro, executive director of the Oakland-based California Nurses Association

When Hansen arrived at Summit in 1993, the medical center was on the verge of bankruptcy after a divisive strike. He took over after then-CEO Ken Jones resigned when Summit posted massive losses. Hansen's initial priorities were to stabilize the business, renew the medical center's mission of community health, and find a financial partner to sustain the organization over the long haul.

"He's far more community-minded than most other CEOs," said Rose Ann DeMoro, executive director of the Oakland-based California Nurses Association. "In that way, he was unique among CEOs."

DeMoro said Hansen may have been a "victim of our times," where CEOs in the health care industry are burdened with mergers and profit concerns and can't concentrate solely on the problems of running a hospital.

"I know I wouldn't want his job," DeMoro said. "I mean just imagine, there he is running a hospital in the middle of the inner city in Oakland, California. Add to that the pressure for profits. I wouldn't want his job.

"I'm hoping he resurfaces," DeMoro added.

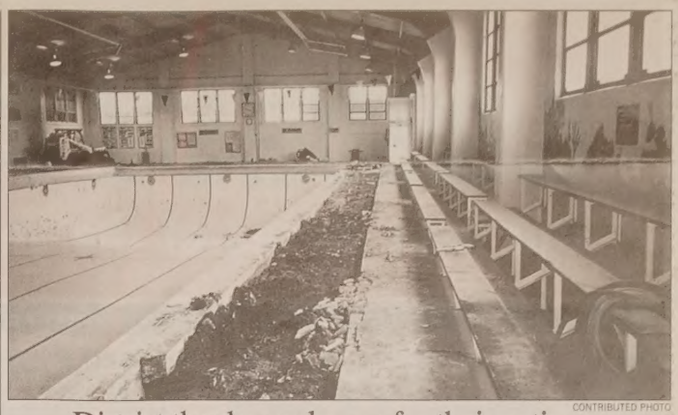

Van Johnson, president and CEO of Sutter Health, said he enjoyed his time working with Hansen.

"I have enjoyed the opportunity to get to know and work with Irwin over the past three years," Johnson said in a statement. "I have been impressed by his dedication to preserving vital community health care resources and by his vision for bringing Summit and Alta Bates medical centers together. Through Irwin's leadership, the medical center created a strong plan to take the organization to the next level."

Hansen said stepping down will now give him time to pursue other interests, and a well-needed break from the health care industry.

"I've been running urban health care institutions non-stop for the past 20 years," Hansen's statement read. "While I love the work, it's time for me to take this opportunity to pursue some things that I've put off for years. My first task will be to put 1,000 miles on my new bicycle. I'm looking forward to spending some time with my wife and daughters. I think it's time for me to stop wearing a name tag around the house."

District thanks pool users for their patience

ALBANY POOL, closed since March to replace the original pool filters installed in 1950, is still a few months from completion due to some unexpected work that needed to be done. The underground heating system, which heats the building, was so corroded that it no longer worked. The electrical wiring was deemed unsafe and needed to be replaced and it was discovered the pool had no bond beam, which insures the integrity of the structure. The entire deck around the pool has been removed (above) to install the new radiant heating system. The new deck is expected to be poured the week of Aug. 27. It is anticipated that the pool will open in October. The additional work caused delays in obtaining specifically fabricated materials. The original cost was $179,000 and it has risen to about $300,000.

Project Ready to Learn still seeking donations

STAFF REPORTS

Once again, our readers are demonstrating their generosity — in a big way.

During the first week of Project Ready to Learn, collection barrels at Hills/CCN offices have been overflowing with backpacks, zippered binders and pencil boxes filled with classroom supplies.

The items will be distributed to children from low-income families by our project partners: Contra Costa's Volunteer Emergency Service Team in Action (better known as VESTIA) and the Alameda County Community Food Bank.

Your help is still needed. Each contribution to Project Ready to Learn will go to a child right here in the East Bay, one who might otherwise return to school empty-handed.

We're seeking donations of:

- A pencil box full of supplies for an elementary-school child: glue stick, safety scissors, crayons, colored pencils or magic markers, writing pencils, a ruler and several big pink erasers.
- A Velcro or zippered organizer packed with supplies for a secondary student: pens, pencils, markers or colored pencils, folders, notebooks or loose-leaf paper, a homework planner, a compass or protractor.
- A scientific, solar-powered calculator or a graphing calculator.
- A sturdy backpack, any style or color.

Label each set of supplies with the grade level of the child for which it is intended. Drop off before Aug. 31 during regular weekday business hours at:

- West County Times, 4301 Lakeside Drive, Richmond, 510-758-8400.

To donate money, write a check to VESTIA, and include the words "For school supplies" in the memo line. Mail to Volunteer & Emergency Services, 2530 Arnold Drive, Suite 300, Martinez, CA 94553. (Contributions are tax deductible and will be used to purchase school supplies.)

ries to go program

you've ever thought of ding time helping out the y library system and figured you'd be mending or shelving books, expand your horizons! The library offers a unique community program that is worth pursuing. The "Stories To Go Program," which pairs interested adult readers with low income preschools or daycare classes, will set you soaring with satisfaction.

Volunteer readers are matched with a class to read and "bond" with children. Over the course of the school year, volunteers can see the interest in books and stories grow with their audience. Children love the storytimes, the daycare's are appreciative, and the volunteers enjoy themselves.

The library encourages volunteers by providing training, books, puppets, props, fingerplays and songs in kits that are ready ingredients for success. There is follow up support from local library staff.

The purpose of these outreach efforts by the library and volunteers is to foster an early love of books and improve the reading readiness of children entering elementary school. Numerous studies have shown that these early reading activities are critical to good brain development and can determine a child's future ability in school.

To take part in this important and delightful program, enthusiasm and an interest in this young age group is all you need. Volunteers must be 18 or over, provide their own transportation and take a TB test. Locations of the program are in the San Pablo, Concord, Pittsburg, and east county areas.

Training for San Pablo areas is Sept. 13 and 20 (consecutive Thursdays) from 9 a.m.-noon.

In Pittsburg and east county, training will be Sept. 14 and 21 (consecutive Fridays) from 9 a.m.-noon.

The Concord community training will be Oct. 11 and 18 (consecutive Thursdays). To find out more, call Lyn Palme, Wilruss Office, Contra Costa County Library (925) 927-3288.

The mayor is in — every Saturday morning

"I want to remind people that since I've been mayor, every Saturday morning down at City Hall I have the door open and the coffee hot for anybody who wants to walk in and tell me what they think, or tell me off, or whatever they want to do," Mayor Larry Damon said at last week's City Council meeting.

"It's an open discussion. Sometimes the kind of thing you're concerned about, perhaps you don't want to talk about here," Damon noted. "You might consider coming down there on Saturday morning and sitting down and just going over it a little bit."

The mayoral open discussion sessions are held Saturdays from 10 a.m. until about noon in Conference Room A at City Hall, 10890 San Pablo Ave.

City proclamation

Last week the City Council declared October 2001 to be Domestic Violence Awareness Month in El Cerrito.

"Violence involving intimate partners, domestic violence, is widespread, crossing all ethnic, racial, age, national origin, sexual orientation, religious and socio-economic lines," the city proclamation states.

"The residents of Contra Costa County have consistently said that community safety is their highest priority," it notes. "The Contra Costa Board of Supervisors has implemented a resolution for zero tolerance for domestic violence."

The proclamation was suggested by STAND! Against Domestic Violence, formerly Battered Women's Alternatives, a group dedicated to ending violence in homes and communities. The group will launch its domestic violence awareness month activities beginning with a ninth annual Rebuilding Lives Luncheon to be held at the Hilton Concord on Thursday, Sept. 20.

"STAND! Against Domestic Violence is a multi-service agency which provides a range of services," the El Cerrito proclamation states. "Including 24-hour crisis line, emergency shelter, legal advocacy, children and teen programs, counseling, support groups, employment training, batterer's treatment program and prevention programs."

The proclamation urges "all citizens to actively participate in efforts of STAND! Against Domestic Violence, to end relationship violence in our communities."

"Rugs gradually wear as they are walked on. That n't be avoided, but you can lessen the problem by rning or rotating your rugs from time to time so they n't always get walked on in the same places. Walk- g on a dirty rug shortens its life prematurely. Dirt d sand fragments act like sandpaper as you grind em into the surface of your rug. The solution is to ve your rugs washed when they are dirty."

School districts tackle student retention

By Kyra Kitlowski
STAFF WRITER

Q: What are the West Contra Costa Unified School District and surrounding districts doing this school year regarding the end of social promotion in the eighth grade? What will happen to the eighth-graders who have not met the academic standard for promotion onto the ninth grade?
Connie Chan Kucera, El Cerrito

A: Life as a middle school student isn't so vivid in my mind anymore, but I clearly remember that first day of high school. First, there was the endless anguish of picking out the right outfit and finding out I still didn't look cool enough. Then I remember the lockers being twice my size, and the height of those in the senior class. It was probably enough nervousness and excitement to send several new ninth-graders into sheer panic.

In all seriousness, the change from middle school to high school can be unsettling, and even more so for some students who are not ready for the transition. They might not be ready socially or academically. It was the state's idea in 1998 to start putting the pressure on the teachers and principals to be accountable for students not prepared for the next grade.

The state law regarding pupil promotion and retention, AB1626, went into effect by 1999, after being signed by Gov. Pete Wilson. The intent was to curtail social promotion for students not meeting academic standards and to get those at-risk children into remedial courses, said Sarah Salari, a coordinator of the state's district and school programs.

Two bills were included with AB1626, Salari said. One required districts to provide intensive supplemental instruction for the students they retain, and the other, SB1370, provided $75 million to finance summer school programs for students in grades two through six, and an additional $30 million to expand summer programs for older children.

Key elements of AB1626 are:

- The governing board of each school district and each county board of education must approve a policy regarding promotion and retention.
- The policy should identify pupils who should be retained and who are at risk of being retained on the basis of either results of the STAR test or pupils' grades and other indicators of academic achievement designated by the district.
- The pupil should be retained unless the pupil's regular classroom teacher specifies in writing that retention is not the appropriate intervention.

Susie VanDeVeer, assistant superintendent of the West Contra Costa Unified School District, said her district uses criteria including overall performance in school and test scores for a teacher to recommend student retention. That student could be recommended to go to summer school in order to be promoted, could be promoted but put on a plan requiring additional work during the next year to catch up, or could be retained.

"We don't want to graduate students that don't have the skills we require to be successful," VanDeVeer said.

At Knightsen Elementary School in east Contra Costa County, teachers in grades four through eight are required to give parents weekly notification on how their children are doing in hopes early intervention will avoid retention.

Vickey Rinehart, principal-superintendent of Knightsen, said in grades one through five an at-risk child is put in an intensive program for one hour, twice a week to work on the weak areas. At-risk students in grades six through eight are required to use their elective periods for intervention work.

Since the district approved its promotion/retention policy two years ago, it has made a difference, Rinehart said.

"It's one of the major (reasons) for our increase in test scores," she said.

Other officials for school districts agree their retention policies have reaped benefits.

"The really good thing about this law is it gives you the opportunity to really intervene with the kids who are behind ... and we are identifying these kids early on," said Cindy Galbo, assistant superintendent of Pleasanton Unified School District.

While each school district adds its own flavor to the policy, they seem to share a concern for notifying parents about a child's possible retention early on.

Schools must have an appeal policy for parents who disagree with retention decisions. Each school will have an official, such as the superintendent or principal, who will review the appeal and make the final decision.

"We try to keep the parent notified (about possible retention) in many ways," said Sandy Hare of Dublin Unified. "There is no reason a parent would not be informed."

For more information on pupil promotion and retention, see on the state department of education's Web site: www.cde.ca.gov. Then click on the section titled "Teaching, learning and technology."

Please, no more bores

By Steve Geller

The governor says he's behind the Caldecott fourth bore, if the locals support it. He said, "Obviously, there's a lot of congestion."

Right on, Gov. Davis; astute observation. However, will building the bore do anything to reduce this congestion?

Unfortunately, it will not. While another bore will run traffic faster through the hill, what happens to the traffic after it exits the tunnel? It packs up again down the road. This phenomenon is well known and is called "induced congestion." It's the result of the region's highways being a connected whole, not a bunch of isolated islands.

You'd think this would be obvious to most people, but even our governor doesn't seem to understand.

The Sierra Club has an article on induced congestion on its Web site: www.sierraclub.org/sprawl/transportation/congestion.asp.

During construction of the proposed fourth bore, there'd be a gigantic mess of dirt, detours and traffic. The sad part is that all this expense and suffering won't do diddly for congestion.

I think we locals should thank Davis for his concern, but suggest he look into funding express buses, feeder buses to BART stations, or anything else that would really do something about congestion. Not the bore, please.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Playfields are what's being uprooted

The article "UC Village garden may be uprooted" says that "If ... the (play) fields are built (at Lower Codornices Creek) certain gardens will have to be moved to various smaller plots throughout the courtyards at the Village."

It fails to mention that the reason Albany is planning to develop Lower Codornices Creek (more commonly known as Dowling Park) is to replace the existing Little League complex, soccer/softball field and soccer field, which are being "uprooted" by UC as part of its renovation plan for the Village. One reason that the existing fields will be lost is that the new Village will be occupying more land because it is designed with courtyards so that, among other things, community gardening can occur right in the back yard.

The article leads one to believe that the fields are displacing the gardens when, in fact, the gardens have displaced the fields!

The youth sports groups would have preferred to keep their existing fields and the city of Albany would have preferred to use Measure R money to build additional recreational playfields rather than to replace perfectly good existing fields.

Inappropriate cathedral competition

Cathedral competition is the sport of bishops. San Francisco's Catholic archbishop erected one, a temple of emptiness; now Oakland's bishop proposes an even greater one, a monument to vacuity. Men in pink dresses, acting out the edifice complex, stud the landscape with their magnificent erections.

The Roman Catholic diocese of Oakland (comprising Alameda and Contra Costa counties) wants to construct a huge cathedral and plaza on city-owned land between Kaiser Convention Center and Lake Merritt. Grotesquely shaped like a bishop's miter, the edifice would soar to a height of 16 stories — almost twice the height of the nine-story flatiron building at 14th and Broadway. The plaza would overhang 12th Street and jut over the shore of Lake Merritt like an arrowhead pointing at the brick and board churches on the opposite shore.

You can't miss it, and you won't be able to ignore it. That's the problem! This project will give an overbearing presence in the heart of the city's gathering place — Lake Merritt, the county courthouse, the convention center, the main library and the Oakland Museum — to the Catholic Church at the expense of other believers and non believers.

The cathedral would dwarf the buildings around it. It will seat 1,800 souls, perhaps arriving in 900 automobiles, for at least one holy service every Sunday. That traffic should make quite the mess along Lakeshore, Chinatown and old Brooklyn. And what about parking? The diocese states flat out that this is intended to be an "events cathedral," and not a parish church, which is why a Catholic convention center and an administration building are also planned, but no provision for parking!

Cathedral plaza is grandiose. Pleasure seekers on the lake suddenly find themselves drawn by sheer size and commotion to the outpouring of some religious event — possibly every Sunday. All other times, lake-goers can promenade the plaza and risk being drawn unaware into Catholic ambience. But whether or not people realize the denominational presence, it is there — inescapably — and with presence, influence.

The diocese has no plans to close Our Lady of Lourdes Church on the east side of Lake Merritt, nor the adjacent chancery offices. Lourdes will conduct services as usual, while the cathedral worships with large scale pomp. No one has suggested that the diocese swap the eastside properties, or the old cathedral site at 21st Street and San Pablo Avenue for the proposed new site. The largest private landowner in the world is lobbying to be gifted this strategic piece of city land, a coveted site on the lake, gratis.

The Catholic church is intensely political. Externally, it seeks to conform civil society to its religious scruples while it claims those same scruples to exempt itself from compliance with civil codes. Visually, the cathedral challenges the county courthouse. The architectural gestalt recalls the enduring controversy between church and state: a contest of authority finally settled in the mind of secular society, yet never accepted in principle by Rome.

Internally, Catholic politics are brutally discriminatory. The church prohibits women and people with disabilities from priesthood and diaconate. It excludes remarried divorces and sexual minorities from sacramental life and full church membership. It advocates what it calls "just discrimination" against homosexual civil rights.

Sexual minorities are, in fact, criminalized by the catechism of the Catholic Church. Church policy and twisted biblical constructions are excuses for sexual apartheid.

Establishment of religion, whether real or symbolized in mammoth construc[tion] is a threat to American pluralism. T[he] massive cathedral plaza creates the [ap]pearance of Catholic ascendancy [ov]town. Every other denomination will [ne]essarily appear diminished. Acquiring [the] choice location and the zoning permi[t] is a statement of political influence. Ere[ct]ing and maintaining the project is a d[is]play of great wealth. Because the Cathe[lic] church has never given up its ambitio[n] to reunite all Christians to Rome, [the] project symbolizes dominance, not p[lu]ralism. It asserts Catholicism's postu[re] of "one over all," and softens the inte[n]tion of democracy to keep the Church [of] Rome "one among many."

Is this the appropriate signature e[le]ment for Lake Merritt's vital southside?

If you live in the Diocese, please ma[ke] your opinion known to the Oakland C[ity] Council at 510-238-3266, or better [yet] drop them a note at 1 Ogawa Plaza, Oa[k]land, CA 94612.

Incomprehensible

The cycle of violence in Israel and t[he] West Bank continues. This I understan[d]. Violence begets violence.

What I don't understand is the cr[i]cism of Israel for its policy of targeti[ng] combatants — call them terrorists or [if] them soldiers — for Palestinian libe[ra]tion; it doesn't matter. How can it be si[d] to say the targeting of combatants in [a] war is somehow unjust or unfair. Th[at] civilians die in these attacks is terri[ble] but the civilians are not the targets.

The destruction of 21 lives at a disc[o] the destruction of 15 lives at a restaura[nt] and the destruction of eight lives at a b[us] stop — none of which were combatan[ts] and many of them were children.

Where, in God's name, is the criticis[m] of the intentional and purposeful d[e]struction of these lives, the purposef[ul] destruction of civilians, families and chi[l]dren.

If there must be war, isn't it more h[u]man for the combatants to be the ones dying?

Doubling of prosecutors still not enough in elder abuse cases

MARTIN SNAPP
Snapp Shots

There's been some news since last week's column.

On Tuesday, the Contra Costa Board of Supervisors voted to double the number of prosecutors in the D.A.'s office working on elder abuse cases.

That's the good news. The bad news is that the office currently has only one. Which means Contra Costa County will have a grand total of two prosecutors to handle the hundreds of new cases that come in every month.

I suppose we should be grateful for any increase at all, but it's like the equivalent of throwing pebbles at a battleship. Both Contra Costa and Alameda counties should have at least 12 lawyers working full-time on nothing but elder abuse cases, like Santa Cruz and San Diego counties.

But that won't happen unless we hold the politicians' feet to the fire and make them increase the D.A.'s budget to the point where the good guys have a fighting chance against the bad guys.

Sad news for poetry lovers: East Bay poet Rosalie Moore, the last original member of a maverick poetry circle known nationally as the Activists, has died at the age of 90.

She was born in Oakland in 1910. Like Mark Twain, her arrival was ushered in by Halley's comet.

But unlike Twain, who always said, "I came in with Halley's comet and I intend to go out with it" (and he did, dying when the comet reappeared 76 years later), Moore outlasted the comet's reappearance in 1986 by 16 years.

She graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Cal in 1932 and went to work at KLX, the radio station that used to broadcast from the top of the Tribune Tower. But she quit that job because it was getting in the way of her writing — a brave act in the middle of the Great Depression.

She became a leading member of the Activist school of poets, which is not the same thing as saying she was a political activist. Rather, the Activists believed that poems should be original and exciting, "active" in every line.

In other words, they believed that if you haven't said it quite right, throwing in a few more adjectives won't make it any clearer.

This was in direct contrast to the self-indulgence of their main rivals, the Beat poets. "Beat poetry gives you a false sense of urgency," Moore wrote in 1950. "Not that the urgency does not actually exist, but the beatman is substituting pitch for the actual work that a poet should do."

Well, we all know who won: the Beats. But Moore persevered against the popular trend, continuing to do "the actual work that poets should do." In 1949, W.H. Auden selected her collection, "The Grasshopper's Man And Other Poems," as that year's book in the prestigious Yale Collection Of Younger Poets.

That was followed by many other books, including "Year Of The Children," an epic narrative of the Children's Crusade that was nominated for a National Book Award in 1977; "Of Singles and Doubles" in 1979; and "Gutenberg in Strasbourg," a cycle of poems about the invention of the printing press, in 1985. Her most widely known poem, "Catalogue," appears in many school textbooks.

On learning of Moore's death, Edward Brunner of the University of Illinois, said, "It seemed to me almost inconceivable that someone deep in the middle of the conservative 1950s could produce works that were at once so wildly extravagant and so carefully crafted."

There will be a memorial service for Rosalie Moore at 2 p.m. this Sunday at Community Congregational Church in Tiburon. Hail to thee, blithe spirit.

On a happier note, happy 25th birthday to Blue Unicorn, an exquisitely produced poetry magazine that has been published out of Kensington since 1976.

(And, yes, Rosalie Moore was a frequent contributor, along with Karl Shapiro, James Schevill, Joan La Bombard, William P. Dickey and Joseph Salmi, who calls it "one of the best damned poetry journals in the entire nation.")

Blue Unicorn was founded by three poets — Ruth Iodice, B.Jo Kinnick and Harold Witt — after they were purged in a political coup at the State Poetry Society, whose quarterly they were editing.

"It was real cloak and dagger," says Iodice. "There has always been dissension in the poetry society. The president at the time — who was eventually replaced — decided he wanted to fire us. So we decided, 'Hey, why don't we start our own magazine?'"

The prospects for survival were bleak for a new poetry magazine in 1976. As poet John Ciardi wrote in grim encouragement, "You can only expect to be a failure — but may your failure be a rewarding one."

But Blue Unicorn was not a failure. Through thick and thin, it has carried on for a quarter of a century, publishing free verse, sonnets and both traditional and experimental forms. "The only prejudice we have," says Iodice, "is against bad poetry."

Such as?

"Clichés, soft-core sentimentality, and outright lies — such as 'my heart is breaking.' We don't go for that "Moon/June" stuff. Also, we are not interested in pornography or anything for the sake of shock."

So what are they looking for?

"Arresting poems, a tightness of structure and effective imagery. We want a kind of worthiness — no 'Ode to a Belly Button.'"

It's not easy to get published in Blue Unicorn. Every week, it receives 750 to 1,000 letters containing poems. But it's not impossible, even if you're an unknown.

If you want to submit a poem, send it to Blue Unicorn, 22 Avon Rd., Kensington, CA 94707. (That's also where to write if you want to buy a subscription.) But keep it short; the editors hate to print anything longer than a page.

And no gimmicks, please. "There are all manner of things people will do to get our attention to get their poem published," says Iodice. "I've seen poets do headstands, send their manuscripts on bright pink paper, or even reinforce them with cardboard so their manuscript won't get wrinkled."

Traveling to Cabo? Be sure that Fido gets a massage

MIKE CLEARY
The Food and Travel Enthusiast

ve my fair share of press releases from hotels. Often informative, sometimes silly and baffling, but always interesting as they usually deal with newly created guest services, an upgrade to the property or the details of a new guest package.

To illustrate the range of content, I picked a few that recently came my way. I also noted an ad and a newspaper article that demonstrate the business factor. However, before delving with the content, you first have to appreciate the writing style.

The wine industry is at the top of the heap when it comes to florid prose, but the hotel industry is rapidly gaining on them. What marketing types in these businesses have in common is an abhorrence for the unadorned noun. At least two, possibly three adjectives dress every noun. Mind you, I don't have a complaint with this. Often, the property or service is first-rate, and gushing is prompted by their genuine enthusiasm. When I experience something special, positive superlatives start popping into my head, too. And if I can't find them, I borrow one of theirs if it does the job done.

Here's an example of a release regarding guest services that I put into the informative category:

"The Pan Pacific (800-533-8181) in San Francisco now has a "luxury locker" service. If you're in and out of the city on a regular basis, you can leave a change of clothes or an entire wardrobe behind which is then put in a cedar-lined closet after being laundered and dry-cleaned. Next time you check in, your stuff is ready and waiting in your room. They will hit you up for the cleaning, but the storage is free. The same hotel will also stuff a pillow to a your preference. I used to think that was silly, but now that I travel with my own pillow to keep the neck pain fairy away, I have changed my mind.

A perfect example of the silliness factor is the announcement of the jet-lag massage offered to pets of guests staying at Los Ventanas al Paraiso in Los Cabos, Mexico. I found this story in USA Today:

"We know what kind of stress they undergo while traveling : especially the treatment they get from some of the airlines," the assistant general manager Florent Gateau is quoted as saying. I think the general manager was laughing too hard to be quoted.

y the way, the head and neck massage for dog or cat runs $25 and up. They also provide a beach-side portable "pet cabana." Who in heaven's name takes their pet to Cabo? However, hats off to their marketing department for getting the resort mentioned in a national publication.

I mentioned that sometimes hotel rhetoric can be baffling. Figure this one out:

In a recent ad, a popular resort offered an expensive per person rate for a spa package that included "a welcoming valet experience." Does this mean if you are staying there but not taking advantage of the package, you will have a less than welcoming valet experience? The hotel will go unnamed because everything else about it is topnotch.

I think this is a pretty cool idea:

All three Pebble Beach Resorts : The Lodge at Pebble Beach, the Inn at Spanish Bay and Casa Palmero : are making available to guests one of two Volvo C70 convertibles at no charge. Take it for a couple of hours, put the top down and enjoy the sights of the Monterey Peninsula. You'll want to reserve one when you book (800-654-9300).

September's coming, and with it a number of events that are always enjoyable. Among them is the 49th annual Sausalito Art Festival (415-331-3757) featuring over 270 artists on Labor Day Weekend. Best way to get there are the Bay ferry services.

That same weekend Mary Ann and I will be at the Sonoma Mission Inn for the annual Sonoma Valley Harvest Wine Auction (707-935-0803). I will be sharing the stage with the likes of Tommy Smothers, Anthony Dias Blue, auctioneer Dave Reynolds and a bevy of madcap valley vintners.

Both of these festivities guarantee pleasurable exhaustion. Cheers.

Speier speaks to League

State senator Jackie Speier, 8th District, will speak at the annual Community Luncheon of the League of Women Voters of Berkeley, Albany and Emeryville on Friday, Aug. 24, at Hs Lordships on the Berkeley Marina.

Speier chairs the Senate Insurance Committee, which is responsible for developing laws and overseeing government regulation affecting California's $80 billion insurance market.

The committee has jurisdiction over issues relating to managed health care and insurance coverage of vehicles, homes and personal life.

She also chairs the Senate Select Committee on Government Oversight which recently held hearings on protecting government whistle-blowers as well as on gender disparity in the faculty hiring practices of the University of California. She is also a member of senate committees on appropriations, energy, utilities and communications, transportation, the Select Committee on Bay Area Transportation, and the Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

The League sponsors the luncheon as a fund-raiser and to bring together business, university and community leaders with political officials and League members of the three East Bay cities to discuss issues of mutual interest.

The date of the League luncheon was chosen to honor the passage of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which gave women the right to vote on Aug. 26, 1920. Today the League is not for women only, and more and more men are becoming active members.

Luncheon tickets are $50. For more information, call 510-527-0191.

Berkeley plays role in barrier-free park

By. B. Roscoe
STAFF WRITER

The state budget is not exactly a wish list.

But Assemblywoman Wilma Chan made a wish for Oakland, and it came true when Gov. Gray Davis signed the 2001-02 state budget on July 26.

Chan, who represents the 16th District, requested funds for the development and construction of a barrier-free park and playground to be built in Roberts Regional Recreation area in the Oakland hills.

"I asked for $50,000, but we got $25,000," said Chan, noting that the budget was tight.

The park, for which the goal is to develop a new playground and entry area that is safe and accessible to children with diverse physical abilities and disabilities, is a joint project between the East Bay Regional Parks Department and the Oakland Rotary Club.

The idea was born in 1994 when Eddie Snow was the Rotary president. He attended a large Rotary presidents' meeting and was introduced to the barrier-free park idea through two other clubs that had established their own in Omaha, Neb., and Portland, Ore. Snow decided that was the project he wanted to bring to life in Oakland.

The first step was finding a partner. That success came in the form of the East Bay Regional Parks Department. The second step has been in process since the inception of the idea, and that's raising the money.

"It's been a long term project," said Snow, "a lot longer than I intended. I'm a business man. I'm used to making deals and moving on." But, he admits, he loves the project so he has to do the fund-raising. He was delighted with the state's $25,000 infusion, but said "it would be even better if there was another zero."

Snow also met with advocacy groups for the disabled to get their input and to make sure there was a need for such a park. One of those groups was the Berkeley Center For Independent Living. "They have been very, very active supporters," enthused Snow about their participation over the last six years.

Gerald Baptiste, the deputy director for the Center For Independent Living, has worked with Snow on this project and confirmed the need.

"Sixteen percent of the population in the Bay Area is disabled," said Baptiste. "There's a higher concentration in this area than nationally."

He was very excited about the project. "This is just great," he said. "This is going to be a major, major asset to the Bay Area."

Snow's goal is to raise $1 million to complete the unique park and playground. Right now they've raised a little more than $660,000, which includes this most recent funding from the state. The plan is to break ground as soon as the rains stop next spring.

"We plan to build what we can with what we've got," said Snow. He'd like to see as much of the infrastructure complete as possible and then go back in and finish as the funding allows.

"Business hasn't been very supportive up to this point," he said, with the hope that having something in the park to see might inspire the fund-raising flow. Assemblywoman Chan said she would "try to do a lot of advertising for the project" in order to help them reach their financial goal.

Ned McKay, the public information supervisor for the park district, which will own and operate the playground, described the area where the playground will be built in Roberts: "On two acres up the slope from the first parking lot, next to the pool." Currently there is disabled access to the pool which includes a crank-operated hoist to assist people from a wheelchair into the water. As McKay said, "that would fit in nicely with the disabled park."

The playground will help develop self-esteem and will provide opportunities for entire families, able and disabled, to play together. And it has many unique features.

- The entry plaza, as well as throughout the play area, will have graphic signs and maps to provide instructions for the seeing and sight-impaired.
- Push buttons will activate different sounds and provide directions to playground elements.
- There will be a play mountain and cave, covered with rubber safety surfacing material, that features hand holds, rope and horizontal ladders, and climbing rocks for reaching the top.
- A wheelchair obstacle course will be located between the mountain and the water play area where there will be a raised stream bed with a water flow that can be activated by players.
- At the water play and spray station, colorful arches and pylons constructed from steel tubing will emit various streams or sprays of water when activated by large, simple push buttons.
- There will also be swings for all abilities from the standard belt type to an upper-body activated swing to a wheelchair swing.

The equipment that will be installed is designed by Steve Lebwohl of Wildwood Playgrounds in Portland, Ore., a company that specializes in building playgrounds for children with disabilities. The barrier-free park will offer recreation opportunities for more than children, though.

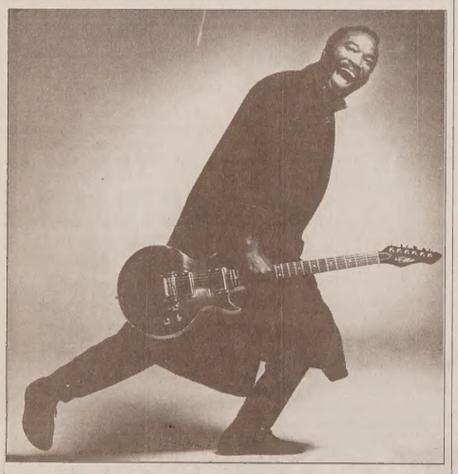

"It's not just for kids," said Baptiste, "it's for disabled parents" so they can more actively participate while their children frolic on the playground. The landscaping will be done by the landscape architectural firm of Arbegast, Newton, and Griffith of Berkeley, who were chosen three years ago via the bidding process administered by the East Bay Regional Parks Department.

"If we can break ground in March — weather permitting — we should be ribbon-cutting by July," Snow said. "This is going to be one magnificent playground."

'Frank Olivier's Twisted Caba

THE NIMBLE physical comedy and quick wit of Frank Olivier be showcased at the Julia Morgan Center for the Arts, 2640 College Ave. in Berkeley, on Aug. 24 and 25 in "Frank Olivier Twisted Cabaret," where he will be "Uncle" Paul Nathan and Twisted Cabaret Band in an astounding array of 15 different variety/vaudeville style acts. Both performances are at 8 p.m. Tickets are $16 and are available by calling 925-798-1300.

World Music Festival returns

THE CONGOLESE band Samba Ngo will perform dance numbers when Telegraph Avenue celebrates the global rhythmic traditions of music and dance at the third annual Berkeley World Music Festival on Sunday, Aug. 26, from noon to 6 p.m. The festival includes a line-up of top World Music bands and multi-ethnic dancers and performers in a colorful block party on Durant Avenue just above Telegraph Avenue. Telegraph Area merchants, artists, craftspeople, restaurants, and clubs will participate in the free event, which features Cuban band Fito Reinoso's Ritmo y Armonia, Afro-Latin/hip hop band O-Maya, Congolese band Samba Ngo, drum groups Grupo Izu Fun Fun and Group Petit La Croix, the Ka Ua Tuahine Polynesian Dance Company, Grupo Aztlan de San Francisco, and Jyoti Kala Mandir College of Indian Classical Arts. The festival is seeking volunteers, sponsors and booth vendors. For details call 510-382-1321 or email zunzunpr@earthlink.net. Web site: www.taasite.org. The Berkeley World Music Festival is funded in part by the city of Berkeley, Berkeley Arts Commission, Zellerbach Family Fund, and UC Berkeley, and receives in-kind support from the East Bay Express, Hills Newspaper Group, KPFA, KALX, sfgate.com, and local merchants.

sharks, Olympians, and at least one survivor.

In fact, this year's grand marshall is Sonja Christopher, who, according to Stroll mastermind Lisa Bullwinkel, "is the ultimate game show contestant." Christopher was the 63-year-old ukulele-strumming contestant from the reality game "Survivor," the first to be exiled from the tropical island of Pulau Tiga.

Bullwinkel, executive director of the Solano Avenue Association, made the announcement at a Stroll kick-off bash held Aug. 9 at the Wells Fargo Bank on the Avenue.

"Sonja may not have survived life on an island, but she is charming and a lot of fun, and should really set the tone for things at the Stroll," Bullwinkel said.

This year folks will experience a dazzling array of performers, with the Stroll now officially a world music festival featuring music from 80 different countries, ranging from the Slovenian Traveling Band to the spicy Cajun group Frog Legs, tropical Brazilian Samba to bluegrass, fiddles and folk.

Birdleg and the Tight-Fit Blues Band will be the featured group, while belly-dancers will wiggle and jiggle, their eyes and moves more seductive than the hot autumn sun.

Then there are the games.

The 1.2-mile stretch of Solano Avenue will be dotted by an endless array of amusements and tourneys, ranging from pinball machines to video games, dance contests to chess matches, poker-faced magicians to TV game shows.

Politicians from Albany and Berkeley will square-off against competitors from their own towns in a live version of "Weakest Link," the losers fated to a cold bath in the Lion's Club dunk tank, according to Bullwinkel.

Politics being perhaps the greatest game of all, contestants will have the option of choosing a stand-in if they lose, avoiding a drop in the drink — though it will cost them.

Referring to recent events in Berkeley where Mayor Shirley Dean and Councilman Kriss Worthington matched wits in a game of political one-upmanship, Dean said "if I have to go into the drink, I'll select Kriss as my alternate." The recent grudge match was fought over the presence of a Scout Troop from Japan.

Dean plans to get into the swing of things at this year's parade, though she has yet to choose her costume. "Sometimes I feel like I'm a game piece," Dean mused at last Thursday's kick-off bash. "Sometimes it seems like people from around the city are trying to push and pull this way and that."

Albany Mayor Allan Maris, currently recovering from a successful surgery to treat prostate cancer, will be a tough competitor as well, facing off against other Albanian politicos sporting enough to risk facing the murky waters of defeat.

As participants in this year's Stroll play games, dance, and take in all the sights, 80 different food concessions will offer tantalizing cuisines from around the world.

Many of the Bay Area's most gifted artists will offer their wares at mid-Solano Avenue, gorgeous handmade crafts that range from stained glass windows and wild ceramics to a dazzling array of jewelry, silk and satin scarves, virgin wool sweaters, marvelous hand-crafted toys, and more.

Naomi Braun, conductor of Girl's Beginning II Choir, ex- ined that beginners learn the sics and get to know the com- risons between the written rds and the notes.

"I used to think that you just d to sing loud to be the best, d in Girls Beginning Choir I rned that to be in a choir you ve to blend in with the rest of people — blend in with the " offered Orton, who sings the Girl's Intermediate Choir. According to Braun, Concert oir is a good place for the stu- ts to really learn sight-read- because the next level is En- mble, one of two mixed ldren's choirs in the Perform- Department.

Althea Dolan of Berkeley ined how she had improved sight-reading over the course one year in Concert Choir. en as a student at Bentley and ns her second year in Con- t Choir this fall.

Also, in Concert Choir, we begin touring and we practice two times per week," noted Nikki Friedman of Piedmont on the serious pursuit of vocal improvement at this level. Friedman is a sixth grader at Tehiyah Jewish Day School in El Cerrito.

The camp regimen includes breakfast at 8 a.m., morning rehearsals and classes, then an hour of rest and quiet in the cabins after lunch.

Only the melodious voices of recital-practicing counselors can be heard coming from the main lodge. Piedmont resident and camp counselor Amy McKenzie rehearses a duet with another camp counselor, Alicia Adams.

"Alicia was a counselor when I was a kid and I would sing this same song at camp — now we're doing it together. Who would ever think Alicia and I would be here together 15 years later," marveled McKenzie, who is serving as head of the camp's voice program.

Accompanying the duet on piano is assistant camp director Sue Bohlin. She recalls the 17 years that she has been coming up to camp.

"It was a boy's music camp when it first started; it was quite small. The staff cooked all the meals," she said, noting how it has grown to a camp of over 100 musicians this year.

Bohlin is the Training Department's director during the choir year, supervising seven conductors, as well as the department's rehearsals, repertoire, concerts and classes.

"Here at camp I am one of four accompanists and I supervise the theory program," Bohlin said modestly.

The afternoons are less structured explained Braun, who has been with Piedmont Choirs since 1992 and was visiting camp on this day. "I just can't stay away. I come up and visit every year to see the kids," noted Braun laughing.

The voice lessons are held in small groups for the younger students and the older students have private lessons.

"Then they can go fishing, do arts and crafts, swim or participate in other sports and activities," Braun said.

Anne Hege, who lives in Albany, grew up in Piedmont Choirs and directed the Boys Intermediate Choir last year. She is one of 20 camp staffers this year, teaching theory and voice lessons.

On this particular afternoon she is giving a lyrical and fun voice lesson to seven Training Department boys and girls, ages 8-11.

"I like learning at camp — I like theory," noted 9-year-old Allison Rosengard, a Piedmont resident and a student at Bentley.

Near the pool a group of young girls and boys congregate to play with "oobleck," a slimy, colorful concoction of cornstarch, water and Kool-Aid, while swimmers splashed and played in the camp's two swimming pools.

"I haven't gone swimming yet, but I will," noted Maya Florsheim, a fourth grader at Havens, as she let the oobleck slide through her fingers. She described her first year at camp as fun and educational.

Young camper Cameron Statton has created a miniature lizard habitat and happily searches the perimeter of her cabin for lizards.

The students, living in groups of 10 to 12, keep their cabins clean and tidy to win points, and decorate their quarters according to the name of their cabin.

"We're the Super Stars so we decorated our cabin with glow-in-the-dark stars," noted Johnston, who is hoping she and her fellow mates will win for best decorating.

Just before dinner a mini vocal recital is held in the open amphitheater. The staff performs at first and then the students get an opportunity.

"It builds their courage and self-assurance to perform," noted Kelly.

Nighttime activities include campfire and stargazing.

"This time of year it's clear so we may have astronomy night," said Braun.

"I like the campfire — throwing a stick into the fire and saying something that would make the camp better. When I threw my stick in, I said, 'I hope the boys have good cabins but I hope the girls have better cabins,'" said Maddie Stafford laughing. Stafford is a third grader at Havens School and noted that her favorite camp recreation is swimming and picking blackberries.

Music Camp is held one session each summer. The younger children, members of the Training Department, attend camp for one week to experience music in a nurturing and fun environment. The older students in the Performing Department attend camp for two weeks, enabling each camper to make substantial progress in both music theory and vocal development. The camps culminate with a concert to which all families are invited.

The camp choir also performs in concert at an Oakland A's game.

"Every year, all the kids at camp learn the National Anthem and sing it at an Oakland Athletics game in September. It's special because often the players come and say hello," Geary said.

Radio can be a risky business

At least, it has been for KCBS news reporter Doug Sovern

By Ian Bauer
STAFF WRITER

Doug Sovern has been shot at in Los Angeles, almost died in Africa, and has traversed a bottomless crevasse in the Himalayan Mountains. Sovern has taken assignments with some risk attached in his role as a general assignment reporter with KCBS news radio in San Francisco.

A graduate of Brown University, Sovern's interest in journalism started early, first at his high school newspaper and later as a copy boy at the New York Times. "I was basically a gofer, a researcher," he says with a frown. Print journalism wasn't exciting to him, and stuffy attitudes from Times staff didn't help either.

Still, his goal was journalism and despite a desire to be a rock musician, he thought maybe radio would be more to his liking. It involved sound and music, two things he enjoyed. "I have a short attention span and I like to talk," he adds.

Sovern's rock star dreams didn't go away easily, though. A bass guitar player, the aspiring musician joined the band "Nice Boys From New York" after moving to Berkeley in 1985. The short-lived group made one independent record exciting no one. Realizing his rock and roll dreams were disappearing, Sovern says, "I needed a day job."

He got jobs in the Bay Area. First, Sovern was a production assistant at the K101 radio station. He scored a four-year job after that with the Associated Press Radio Network. "They work you to the bone over there," he says of the AP. He joined KCBS in 1990.

Sovern has covered murders and arson, and has done some investigative reporting in his role as a radio news reporter.

In 1992, he covered the Los Angeles riots for KCBS. He'd phone in reports using a cell phone, directly from South Central LA.

"I flew down to LA, and I could see (the riots) going on from the airplane," recalls Sovern. "Then I got a rental car and drove to South Central.

"I drove to the last police checkpoint. I told the police officer who I was and that I had to go through. He said, 'Do you want to risk your life? Is your job worth risking your life for?' and I said, 'No, but I want to go there.' Then he said, 'OK, but keep your head down and your foot on the gas.'

"Once I got in there, near where the riots were taking place, I got lost," Sovern says.

The thick smoke from the fires obscured everything, and Sovern's unfamiliarity with Los Angeles didn't help.

Sovern drove around, and at one point was confronted by a man standing in the street with a handgun. Sovern was stuck behind the steering wheel, as the man with the gun stood motionless, less than 15 feet away from Sovern's car.

"The man raised the gun and pointed it right me, then took two shots at the car. When he did that, I tore down the middle of the street. I kept my head down and my foot on the gas. Later, I checked the car. The car wasn't hit," he says shrugging.

Sovern worked for 36 hours non-stop, talking to looters and others. "There's always trepidation to any big story, but once you get there something does kick in," Sovern confesses about his willingness to stay.

In 1999, Sovern decided to tackle mountains. On assignment for the station, he decided to tackle two mountains in particular.

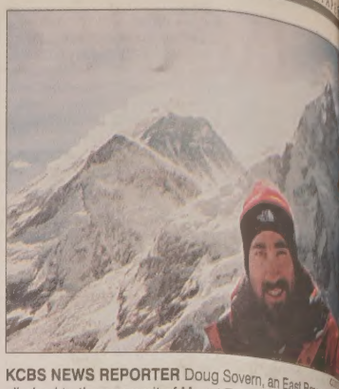

The first was in Africa. Sovern, an avid bike rider who routinely rides around the Oakland hills and all over the Bay Area, took a difficult bike ride through the African country of Tanzania. For a week, Sovern rode 300 miles on a mountain bike from the Indian Ocean inland towards Africa's highest peak, Mount Kilimanjaro and its 19,340-foot summit. Sometime during the bike trek, Sovern suffered salmonella poisoning from something he ate. Suffering from diarrhea, he lost 25 pounds. "I really thought I was going to die," Sovern says.

The altitude on Kilimanjaro was also a danger, as the mountain took its toll on others in Sovern's party. "One guy went blind, and he was this big, personal trainer guy who worked at the Y. Another guy just passed out," Sovern says shaking his head.

He made it to the top of Kilimanjaro, though, and fortunately everyone on the trip recovered. Sovern got his story for the station.

Sovern's experience of being perilously sick — miles away from a hospital — didn't dissuade him from taking another trip into the mountains. This time, the assignment he chose was to Nepal and the Himalayas.

In March of 1996, as the book "Into Thin Air" by Jon Krakauer describes, a team of climbers led by Mountain Madness adventure guides Rob Hall and Scott Fischer went up Mount Everest. The 1996 climbing season would be recorded as one of the deadliest seasons for climbing Everest. Eight people died on the team, including its leaders.

KCBS NEWS REPORTER Doug Sovern, an East Bay resident, climbed to the sunmmit of Mount Everest.

In 2000, after four years off the mountain and under the leadership of new owner Chris Boskoff, the Mountain Madness company was planning to make a return. Sovern heard about the expedition, contacted Boskoff, and worked his way onto the team as one of three journalists.

"I had never really done any climbing," Sovern admits. He wouldn't really be climbing to the summit, but only trekking — really hiking — to the base camp, which was still a difficult journey up to an altitude of 18,500 feet. Sovern, a resident of Skyline Boulevard, says, "Redwood Park trained me for hiking in the Himalayas."

He trained long and hard with a heavy pack and alpine poles through the park to get ready.

In Nepal, in the months of April and May of 2000, Sovern trekked for five weeks. Unfortunately, Sovern threw his back out on the first day of his Himalayan trek. The pain was horrendous, severe enough to almost immobilize him.

"I took Advil. I put Tiger Balm on my back that I bought in Katmandu, and I got massages from a ski patrol guy on the trip," Sovern says. "It was really embarrassing to have this happen to me on the first day. I thought I would have to go home."

He was able to stay, though, making it to the base camp, with the help of Nepalese Sherpas packing a good deal of the equipment. Sovern, pleasantly surprised, endured the altitude pretty well, too. "Moving around at that altitude is hard work. Even breathing is a labor," he says.

During the trek, Sovern's group uncovered bones, including the spinal column of a Korean mountain climber killed sometime before.

But Sovern feels that he has had enough of high altitude climbing for a while.

down to five, he remains equally impressed with the diversity of thought on the board.

"I think what is most notable is that the level of productivity that this board has achieved has been strongest since we have been five," Ruetz told the council. "The cohesiveness of the board has certainly been very strong in the last several months since we've been five."

"Even though it went from seven to five, two people missing hasn't compromised the quality of the board," Ruetz said later.

Friedman stressed a desire for ethnic diversity on the board. "I can't support this motion," Friedman said. "You have five people there and they may have diverse opinions, but they're not that diverse — they're all white. There are certainly a lot of non-white business owners and economic activity in our community."

"Frankly, you don't have a single economic development professional on that group," Friedman said, adding that the board lacked a depth of economic development experience. "We have three candidates for those two slots. One is an economic planner; another one is a certified public accountant and a businessman in real estate."

"I just think that we have some excellent candidates and I would like to see them contribute and give some more economic depth into the current configuration of people," Friedman said.

Damon said the collective observations and insights of seven are better then those of five. "And we do have people waiting in the wings who have excellent technical training in this area itself," Damon pointed out.

"We have candidates here who, in my opinion, would substantially contribute to the richness of this board and lessen the workload and broaden its perspective on the many issues that the board is facing," Damon added. "I don't see a compelling reason to deviate from seven to five right now." He said the question of reducing the EDB from seven to five can be revisited in the future if need be.

Council members Kathleen Perka and Gina Brusatori each voted in favor of the EDB recommendation to reduce the number of board members.

Perka said that the City Council had previously set the EDB number at seven "out of the clear blue" and said the council should go with the recommendation from the board.

Brusatori also voted in the minority on the motion and said that "in terms of diversity, El Cerrito has a very fine record." Brusatori said the recruitment for the EDB "has been difficult" and said some of the concerns about expertise and diversity will be addressed through study sessions with business owners that the board is planning.

Streets

overlay," said a staff report. It says the cities of Martinez and San Jose use this new technology, which it calls cheaper, thinner and quick to apply.

Meanwhile, Stege Sanitary District and the city are disputing who will cover the $55,935 it will cost to raise 113 sewer manholes as part of street maintenance. The manholes are the property of Stege, but are on public streets. The council authorized money to raise the manholes and told the city manager to begin negotiations with Stege.

"With respect to the $55,935 expenditure for raising the 113 sanitary sewer manholes, the city has required other utilities with similar facilities located in the public street to either pay the paving contractor for the cost of raising or relocating such things as manhole lids and water valve covers, or to provide their own crew to reset these facilities immediately after paving," the staff report notes.

"Historically, when the city has engaged in previous annual paving projects, it has absorbed the cost of raising the Stege Sanitary District manholes," it added. "However, the number of manholes encountered on these relatively modest projects was fewer and did not represent a significant cost."

Dwight Merrill, a member of the Stege Sanitary District Board of Directors, spoke at the council meeting and called the $55,935 estimate for raising the manhole structures a "rather high charge." He noted that Stege is a small district that performs a "prosaic but necessary" job. "Whenever we do anything for our sewers we always repair the streets," Merrill said. "And reciprocity is a legal principle — if the city does something to affect our sewers, we expect them to repair the damage."

Merrill also pointed out that Stege Sanitary District was "here first" — formed before El Cerrito was incorporated. "If you want to change them, fine, but you should pay for it," he said.

"I think it behooves all parties to try and work out something agreeable that will keep those (attorney) billable hours from mounting up both on your side and our side," Councilman Mark Friedman said. "It doesn't seem like we're all that far apart. Maybe some phase-in or compromise can be reached."

Douglas Humphrey, district manager of Stege Sanitary District, said the district is talking with city staff about the matter and hopes to reach an agreement in the next couple of months.

He noted the negotiations will affect not only current paving projects, but future work as well.

With last week's action, the City Council has approved a little more than $2.5 million for street maintenance and rehabilitation for the 2001-2002 fiscal year.

PRUDENTIAL CALIFORNIA REALTY

In the heart of Happy Valley

PRUDENTIAL CALIFORNIA REALTY

Gates open gracefully to a long majestic driveway, abundant mature orchards and grassy knolls. Sun-fed English gardens welcome guests to this lovely California ranch home situated on 3.2 acres on Lafayette's Happy Valley Road.

Classic and comforting architectural appointments of recycled brick, paned windows and French doors ensure plentiful natural light while inviting spectacular garden views. In addition to its superb private and gated location, many architecturally intriguing improvements to both the home and the gardens have elevated this property to the status of rare and unique.

Outside, a perpetually blooming garden provides year-round color, including the splendid hues and fragrances of its world-class rose garden

Inside, 3,800 square feet of living space include four pastoral English-spirited bed rooms, each enjoying a peaceful garden setting.

The impeccable main rooms create romance with their intoxicating views of the meticulously manicured grounds, California hills and forest. A sumptuous master-suite includes warming fireplace, walk-in closet and

...en I am asked how I would ...be my garden, I think of how ...d describe my children.

- Can I be objective?
- Can I be reasonable?
- Can I really tell it like it is?

The answer is no. I am much too involved with my garden. I love each and every part of it. But, still, I shall try to tell you something about this place called my garden — a garden that nurtures my soul and makes me smile every day of the year.

This property once blossomed as an English Walnut orchard. The trees were planted between 75 and 100 years ago.

In time, over the last 50 years, our home and its garden has somewhat modified the orchard, but the towering limbs of some of the original trees still remain.

Historic conversions: Berkeley's Golden Sheaf Bakery

MARK WILSON

Part two of three parts

Downtown Berkeley is in the midst of a major revival, as anyone who has driven through the historic business district lately can attest. The construction of new buildings and restoration or renovation of old ones are being conducted at a dizzying pace. Indeed, trying to find a parking place amid all the construction zones in the area has become a real challenge.

One of the most exciting, most eagerly anticipated renovations of a historic building is nearing completion on Addison Street.

The highly acclaimed Berkeley Repertory Theater will soon open the Nevo Education Center, in the landmark Golden Sheaf Bakery at 2071 Addison St. The story of how this altruistic project came about is a classic example of the benefits of historic conversions of old buildings once thought of as obsolete.

Building is a rarity

East Bay architect Clinton Day designed the Golden Sheaf Bakery in 1905. It is one of a rare handful of pre-1906 earthquake buildings made of unreinforced brick still standing in Berkeley. Day designed the two-story commercial building in the Neoclassic style with a set of Romanesque Revival arched windows on the second story. Its most interesting feature is the hand-carved stone shaft of wheat, which adorns the top of its scrollwork pediment.

After the Golden Sheaf Bakery moved out of their old building several decades ago, it was used for a while as an automobile garage. Then it sat empty for more than 20 years. In 1993, the Berkeley Repertory Theater purchased the building. They did not have the money for the needed seismic retrofit work or a major renovation.

So they used this structure as storage space for their nearby theater company, located at 2025 Addison St.

The Berkeley Repertory Theater was formed in 1968 as a small professional community theater company. It held its performances in a converted storefront on College Avenue during its first dozen years.

Then in 1980, the current theater complex was built to house a 400-seat auditorium and stage, offices, a workshop and storage space for sets and costumes.

The Berkeley Rep opened the new Roda Theater in March. This is a 600-seat proscenium theater that complements the adjacent 1980 theater. Since 1985, the Berkeley Repertory Theater management has conducted in-school classes for students from grade school through college in acting, directing, set and costume design and play writing.

Susan Medak, who became managing director of the Berkeley Rep in 1990, said that by the late 1990s, these community outreach programs had become so popular that they were creating an unexpected problem.

"People were calling regularly to ask if they could take acting classes or other theater art classes," Medak said. "But the problem was we had absolutely no space of our own available for such activities. Then we got a call from Avi Nevo that was just what we needed. His offer to help us develop a new education facility allowed us to fast forward a plan that was already in our hearts. It was perfect timing."

Nevo is a real estate developer, civil engineer and general contractor who lives in Berkeley. He came from Israel in 1975 to study engineering at UC Berkeley. His proposal to Medak was to develop the under-used space within the walls of the historic Golden Sheaf Bakery building into a state-of-the-art theater education center.

Nevo's company, the Aldar Investment Company, had been involved in the development and adaptive reuse of old buildings in downtown Berkeley for five years. He had a vision of how the landmark brick structure might fit the Rep's needs perfectly.

Nevo purchased the Golden Sheaf Bakery Building from Berkeley Rep early last year for $575,000. Then he completed a nine-month-long design process for the proposed project.

This included a seismic retrofit, historic restoration of the exterior of the old building and the architectural plans and permits for the new education facility on the interior.

Aldar Investment Company was to do all of the planning, permits, funding, engineering and construction for the project. The total construction budget for this adaptive reuse project came to $1 million. The architect chosen for the design of the interior was Jim Novosel of The Bay Area Architects, a Berkeley firm.

Since the Golden Sheaf Bakery building was an official Berkeley City Historic Landmark, the Landmarks Commission had to approve the plans. At their public hearings, there was no significant opposition to the project.

Indeed, the Berkeley Architectural Heritage Association supported the entire proposal. Construction work on the Nevo Education Center began last January. The project is scheduled to be completed by mid-October. When the building is finally finished, the Berkeley Rep will then lease it from Nevo for eight years, at the rate of $1 per year. "Avi drove a hard bargain," was how Medak humorously described the generous terms of their new benefactor.

After eight years, the Berkeley Rep will have the option of renewing the lease, or buying the property. The Nevo Education Center will be a multi-use facility. There will be three classrooms, a library and theater arts resource room, three offices for the directors of the education program, and an office for Nevo's development company upstairs.

There will be 7,000 square feet of usable space in all, including some new mezzanine areas. There will also be access through the building to the Aurora Theater, a 150-seat theater company located directly behind the Golden Sheaf Bakery.

Nevo took my photographer, Andrea Ferreira, and me on a tour of the new facility while it was under construction. He emphasized that the renovation plans call for restoring and incorporating as much of the old building as possible.

He told us that the three original Neoclassic doorways to the street will be re-installed into new glass frames, with the old wood molding reused, or recreated where it's now missing.

The central doorway will lead into a new lobby area, he said. The old brick facade, with all of its original decorative details, is being fully restored.

Inside the building, we saw the original brick walls being repaired and seismically retrofitted. Some portions of these brick walls will be left exposed, where it is structurally feasible. A set of new skylights is being installed in the old roof, to admit more natural light into the dark interior.

The old cast-iron piers, and cross strut roof beams are being retained. At the front of the upper story, a portion of one of the old beams was removed and replaced with a smaller meta span. This made room for the new mezzanine-level office for Nevo's company.

Medak described the Nevo Education Center as "A labor of love." She emphasized that it will be a showcase cultural facility that will serve as a sort of crown jewel in the overall revitalization of downtown Berkeley, [illegible] or eight years ago, [illegible] considered a "[illegible]

Garden

I would describe my garden proper as an informal English garden featuring a collection of mature trees, flowering shrubs, roses and perennials in a secluded, private setting. The garden is completely fenced in to protect it from the hungry local deer population.

One can enjoy garden views in every direction and borrowed views of oak woodlands and classic California rolling grasslands.

I like to think of my garden as user friendly. It allows me to enjoy sitting alone sipping iced tea on the patio. I can host a beautiful wedding reception here. I can watch my grandchildren play in "Nana's Tea House" right in the middle of the flower bed.

This garden is as demanding of my time and efforts and I desire.

The seasons in this California garden are unique and beautiful. This presents one with different and stunning appearances all year long.

Springtime finds flowering quince, euphorbia, forsythia as well as camellias, wygelia, forget-me-nots. They blossom above a brilliant carpet of wild mustard. The climbing hydrangea, ajuga and the first roses start to unfold.

As the warm days of summer begin, the stately poppes start to bloom as do the hardy geraniums, plumbago, azaleas, penstermon, scabiosa, erigeron, sage and lavender. The roses continue to explode into full color through the summer and into the late fall.

This is the time to enjoy fresh fruit right from the trees: nectarines, figs, plums, Asian pears, apricots and apples.

With the cooler days of autumn, the different varieties of persimmon ripen into shining globes of orange. Tomatoes linger along with the apples, schizostylis and walnuts.

When winter arrives, the bones of the garden present themselves and offer time to reflect on what to do next year.The garden doesn't really sleep, however. It continues to provide interest with winter annuals like primulas, poppies, calendulas, stock and cyclamen.

And thus the cycle of the seasons in my garden start once again. So, there it is. Come. Have a stroll. Enjoy.

A finish that's truly rewarding

Number 375 in a series of true experiences in real estate

TARPOFF AND TALBERT
True Experiences

My wood floors have been refinished and — wow — do they look good! All over again, as if I were seeing them for the first time, I'm surprised at the tremendous difference beautiful floors make. The rooms are lighter and brighter; they seem to have expanded, pushing the walls broader. Even the furniture looks newer, cleaner.

All this glory took less than a week to accomplish. We emptied the rooms on a Sunday; the good people from Tulip Floors arrived the next morning. By Friday, we were able to move everything back in — six days, start to finish. The hardest part was moving the contents of the rooms, living and dining rooms and the kitchen. I couldn't get over how much stuff they held, especially the kitchen.

A lot of my kitchen shelving is open, and I didn't want to have to dust every item after the sanding, so I boxed up every jar and can and container. We left the stove in place but moved the refrigerator to the patio outside the kitchen. This meant that it had to be emptied, which turned out fine because I took the chance to clean both the refrigerator and the freezer, a task long overdue.

Couch, chairs and tables were placed on the patio and covered; pots and pans and books put in boxes, then, along with lamps and pictures, stored in bedrooms. The computer, printer, copier, fax and phones, usually housed in the dining room, had to be moved and yet still be useable. Anet attended to this, parking some items in the bedroom hallway, with others in the kids' bedrooms.

She even figured a way to keep the DSL line going by means of a long extension cord strung through the open ceiling beams. We chose to have the floor work done while the kids were away. I couldn't see how we could manage normal family life with so much of the house off limits. Besides, we needed their rooms for temporary storage.

We weren't sure how we'd manage two large pieces of furniture: the kitchen table and a cabinet filled with flower vases that takes up most of one end wall in the living room. The table is not very wide — about 20 inches — but it is nearly 15 feet long with drawers along one side. Long ago, I was told by the man who sold it to me, it was a kitchen prep table for a girls' school in San Francisco.

I love this table so much that, having found it, I bought it on the spot, then remodeled the kitchen to accommodate it. We use it for everything — homework, reading the newspaper, laying out ingredients and jars for canning and for baking.

The first problem with the vase cabinet was emptying it. It took about eight good-sized boxes to hold my collection. The second difficulty was moving it. The cabinet is heavy and no good handhold is available to grab. Somehow though two strong friends wrestled it outside.

It took six of us to deal with the long table. We removed the drawers so it wasn't so heavy, but getting it outside involved manipulating it through the kitchen door into the dining room, poking one end out through French doors onto the front porch, then very carefully angling it out other double doors in the living room.

There was barely enough clearance but we made it. We parked the behemoth on the lower patio, very convenient for writing or reading under the oak tree adjacent to the garden.

We ran into some mice remains before and during the job — three dead ones and one live — plus one nest — all under or behind furniture and the refrigerator. The discoveries were more embarrassing than anything else, though Anet said the mouse dead in an electrical outlet was "the grossest thing" she had ever seen. The floor guys told us that finding mice nesting under refrigerators is fairly common.

Well, I didn't want it to be common at my house. We had no idea there were mice anywhere in the vicinity until a year or so ago when my daughter got a kitten whose central interest in life is mousing. Where he finds these mice, I don't know, but on several occasions he has herded one into the house causing much scurrying and chasing on our part.

Last Christmas one of these mice ate the water hose going to the dishwasher. These latest mice were, I think, also chased in. They were killed and, I guess, therefore forgotten by the cat. He never expressed any interest in the spots where we found them. The last mouse (for awhile, I hope) was hiding far from the cat's reach. We never heard him, didn't know he was there. We know now.

Once the mice were disposed of (the live one ran away), the floor job went along well, no hitches. A large stain in the wide plank fir floor sanded out (fortunate as I have no extra pieces), and none of the unpainted wood baseboards was so much as nicked.

Several coats of water based finish were squeegeed on, and the result is fine, very fine. And so very silky on bare feet. The fir floors are much lighter now as they were when first laid10 years ago. Knots and imperfections stand out, a look I like. They will darken as the sunlight hits them turning golden honey except where covered by rugs and furniture, and I like that, too. The beech floor in the living room looks even and fresh but otherwise as it did all along.

Jill Heine, who washes the windows and cleans all of our listings, came with an assistant and they spent several hours wiping down walls and washing light fixtures. But there was really very little mess to attend to.

I highly recommend having your floors refinished; it's so visually rewarding. And it isn't depressing like when I buy a new couch or chair. In that case, all the other furniture looks so shabby, I feel I have to replace it too, to even things up.

But with these newly redone floors, everything in my house looks rosy.

Does it make sense to rent?

Once upon a time, the only people who had the privilege of 100 percent financing were veterans or one of the fortunate few who found a willing seller (usually a wealthy relative) who would agree to seller-assisted financing.

Today the question is "Why rent?" The costs of renting are soaring in the Bay Area where even a two-bedroom, one-bath apartment can be as high as $1,800 per month and a small house as much a $2,500 per month.

When you consider the deposit of first and last months rent as well as the security and cleaning deposits, you probably have enough money for closing costs for a 100 percent financed purchase transaction.

There are a couple of loan products designed for 100 percent financing, but by far the most popular is the "Piggyback" loan that eliminates the need for Primary Mortgage Insurance (PMI).

The piggyback loan is actually two loans: a fixed-rate first-trust deed for about 75 to 80 percent of the home purchase price and a second trust deed for the 25 to 20 percent of the home purchase that "piggybacks" on the first. Because the first loan is for 80 percent or less of the purchase value, you avoid PMI.

You do however, have higher interest rates, especially on the second trust deed. The rates are driven by the borrowers' credit report scores, but unlike the single note loan for 100 percent financing which requires absolutely perfect credit and requires PMI, most piggyback financing allows for less than perfect credit.

The difference between the higher payments due to the higher interest rates and the PMI payment on the single note loan product is almost always a wash

And it is important to remember the higher interest becomes a tax benefit, unlike PMI.

There are other limitations to 100 percent financing. Many pro-

NOTICE
Contra Costa Newspapers/ Hills Newspapers
In cooperation with animal rescue groups, advises advertisers to always ask an adoption fee for animals. Giving away pets for "Free" can put them in danger "Free" pets can easily end up being abused. No amount of screening can prevent this. Also, it is a good idea, when possible, to obtain the new owner's full name, full address & phone number. For more information, contact Tony LaRussa's Animal Rescue Foundation at 925-256-1ARF or your local pet adoption agency

PCL: A minor league with major rivalries

MIKE McGREEHAN
Between the Lines

New York had the Yankees, Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers. Boston had the Red Sox and Braves. And Philadelphia had the A's and Phillies.

Meanwhile those living on the West Coast enjoyed such rivalries as the Los Angeles Angels and Hollywood Stars, and Oakland Oaks versus the San Francisco Seals. Add in teams like the Sacramento Solons, Seattle Rainiers, Portland Beavers and the old San Diego Padres, and one had the makings for a great league — the storied Pacific Coast League.

On Saturday, the Pacific Coast League Historical Society held its annual Dick Dobbins Memorial Reunion at the Oakland Museum. A collection of ballplayers from the storied rivalries of the Oakland Oaks-San Francisco Seals rivalry were on hand. Among them were infielder Dario Lodigiani and pitcher Billy Raimondi of the 1948 PCL champion Oaks, the famous "Nine Old Men" managed by Casey Stengel.

As usual, the old players swapped stories, and fans — both old and young — soaked it in. And in what has become a staple for these reunions, it was a fun and informative time for all.

This year, I brought both my dad and 4-year-old son along. We could stay just a short time — less than an hour — but it was time well spent.

As always, it's most interesting to browse through the tables of memorabilia on sale at these functions: the photos, cards, posters and historical books on sale about the PCL and how it was before the major leagues came to the West Coast.

During our short time there, we ran into sportswriting colleagues Win Currier and Mike Wood of the Alameda Journal and Valley Times, respectively. Win, of course, had first-hand knowledge of the old PCL, having lived through it and written about it during the early years of a career that now spans six decades.

Mike is of my generation. But he, too, was accompanied by his father, Dave, who recalled his days as a fan. Dave Wood brought his own piece of memorabilia to the reunion — a 1949 program of the San Francisco Seals' postseason trip to Japan. Some of the words in the program even were printed in the Japanese alphabet — a piece of nostalgia and a keepsake for sure.

Though they had never previously met, Dave Wood and my dad, Frank, had plenty to talk about, as they reminisced about attending games at Oaks Ball Park in Emeryville.

My son, George, isn't much into baseball yet. His principal motivation for coming to the museum was to see the fish and turtles that swim in the "pond" there (George is very much into the animal world).

Though he might never grow up to be the hard-core fan I am, George will someday come to know about baseball — and the PCL — just as I came to know about them. My 1-year-old daughter, Annemarie, will come to know, too.

As it is for George, Annemarie or anybody born the past 45 years, the long-standing rivalry between the Oaks and Seals was before my time. But having grown up hearing countless stories about these teams and their players sparked an interest that continues to this day.

League championships were few and far between for the Oakland Oaks, who won their first in 1912, then had to wait for 15 years to win another. Stengel's "Nine Old Men" of 1948 broke a 21-year title drought for the Oaks, who added their final league title two years later under Charlie Dressen. Stengel went to a Hall of Fame managing career with the Yankees and expansion New York Mets. Dressen became the Brooklyn Dodgers immediately following that 1950 championship year. The Oaks, however, never won another title before playing their final game in Oaks Ball Park in 1955 (the team moved to Vancouver the following season, though George "Catfish" Metkovich gave Oakland fans a final treat by winning the '55 batting title).

Across the Bay, the Seals were a bit more successful. An 18-year-old outfielder by the name of Joe DiMaggio amassed a 61-game hitting streak for the Seals in 1933 — the same DiMaggio who hit safely in 56 straight games for the Yankees eight years later. San Francisco also gave Bay Area PCL baseball a fine send-off by winning the league championship under manager Joe Gordon in 1957. The team moved to Phoenix the following year when the Giants came to San Francisco.

The great PCL stories extend beyond the Bay Area, too. Those who follow the league's history know that a former PCL player inspired the name of 1950s television character Sergeant Bilko, played by Phil Silvers. At the time, Steve Bilko was a burly, slugging first baseman for the Los Angeles Angels.

Steve Bilko was no slouch, either, as he won the league's MVP award three seasons running (1955-57) with his 55 home runs, 164 RBI and .360 batting average earning him the coveted Triple Crown in 1956. Bilko came back in 1957 to blast 56 home runs, but like the Seals, the PCL Angels became part of PCL history when the Dodgers came to Los Angeles in 1958. The Angels relocated to Spokane while their local rivals, the Hollywood Stars — for many years, the PCL's glamour franchise — went to Salt Lake City.

Some had visions of the PCL becoming baseball's third major league in the years immediately after World War II. Surely, many of the league's teams could have held their own against some of their major-league counterparts. And some players, including Bilko, would have surely starred in the majors had expansion and the designated hitter rule come along earlier.

Next year, the PCL will celebrate the 100th year of its existence. And the Pacific Coast League Historical Society is well geared up for the celebration.

No sport celebrates its history the way baseball does. And the PCLHS does a bang-up job celebrating a great league.

For fans of baseball and its past, a trip to a PCLHS reunion (the organization typically has one in Southern California in the spring, too) is time and money well spent.

Running with 'Uncle Al' and 'Mama Lisa'

Marathon program requires big effort

By Edmund Moy
CORRESPONDENT

Editor's Note: Part one of two parts

BERKELEY — It's another foggy Thursday morning at Clark Kerr Track in Berkeley. A group of runners with the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society Team in Training (TNT) marathon program have arrived for their weekly 5:45 a.m. Tuesdays' workout.

The runners are part of TNT's national non-profit fundraising program. In exchange for fund raising money for cancer research and patient services, they receive training from professional coaches to complete a 26.2-mile marathon.

In the East Bay, that coach is Alphonzo Jackson (known simply as "Coach Al") and assistant coach Lisa Felder (affectionately nicknamed "Mama Lisa").

These runners are his "heroes." They are also members of TNT's East Bay Run summer team, which Coach Al has named "Team Determined."

The team gathers in a circle around their coach. All eyes are on a poster board detailing the one-hour long morning workout. Today's training session is entitled "You can't catch me...run your behind off...handicap mile."

It's one of the unique approaches Coach Al utilizes. Another popular one is the "You don't know diddly about..." workouts, in which runners are tested on how well they know their own pace.

But, on this morning, there's some confusion about the workout. A runner asks if her pace should be at a normal tempo.

Coach Al retorts: "No! What does it say? Run your behind off!" The whole group explodes with laughter.

He goes on to explain that the run should be at a lactic threshold pace of 15 seconds slower than their 10-kilometer (6.2-mile) race pace. To keep things close, the one-mile run will be handicapped, with 12-minute milers starting first, 10-minute milers starting two minutes later, eight-minute milers starting three minutes later and seven-minute milers or faster starting five minutes later than the slowest runners. There will also be a cool-down one-mile run and two hill repeats.

Next, Coach Al challenges the group with a question: "What's the proper place to breath from?" Someone utters: "solar plexus." She's correct. The coaches award her a prize. On this morning, it's a waterproof pouch from Noxzema containing a free cassette tape on skin care.

After congratulating her, Coach Al makes it clear that runners need to breathe from the solar plexus, instead of the diaphragm. His point being that shallow breathing will only tighten up the chest and result in problems.

"You don't want to tighten up," he says. "If you're loose up top then you'll be loose down bottom."

The team watches as he demonstrates proper deep-breathing technique from the solar plexus while pumping his arms in a running motion. He repeats a slogan that has become synonymous with his training approach: "It's not physical, it's mental."

Following a brief question-and-answer session, Coach Al points out to the runners that they should take some of the handouts on nutrition, running techniques and injury prevention that Mama Lisa has placed alongside bottles of water on top of a foldout table adjacent the track.

Some of the runners grab copies of the handouts. Others join Mama Lisa for warm-up laps around the track. With the runners circling the track, Coach Al has a moment to himself. He's in remarkable condition for someone that slept only three hours the night before. However, Coach Al's ability to sustain energy on little sleep is something that has taken time to develop. It's a scheduling thing that he's turned into an exact science.

JOANNA JHANDA/STAFF

TEAM IN TRAINING coaches Alphonzo Jackson (left) and Lisa Felder talk to a group of runners early last Thursday morning at the Clark Kerr Track in Berkeley.

Since being named East Bay Run head coach in the spring of 1997, he has juggled coaching duties with a full-time job working nights as a building supervisor in San Francisco and providing personal training for private clients. His partner, Mama Lisa, also balances coaching duties with a full-time job in the human resources department for the non-profit organization Volunteers of America based in Oakland.

A national class senior runner, Coach Al came to TNT with impeccable credentials. If completing 38 marathons and being a nationally certified running coach weren't enough, in 1996, at age 50, he earned a No. 3 ranking in the world for 5-kilometer and half-marathon races in his age division. His marathon personal record time is two hours, 38 minutes and 40 seconds.

Not to be outdone, Mama Lisa has completed 118 marathons and over 40 Ultra-marathons (races of more than 26.2-miles). She has also completed two 100-mile endurance races, including the "Kettle Moraine Endurance Run" in Wisconsin.

After the runners finish their warm-up laps, Coach Al takes them through his stretching routine. As they stretch, Mama Lisa does what any good mother does for her children. She offers advice and pointers on nutrition and proper clothing.

It's these motherly qualities that earned Mama Lisa her nickname. As she tells it, about four years ago, TNT participant Donald Murphy was constantly hearing her reminders to drink water, eat enough food, wear the proper clothes, and put on sunscreen.

"He hugged me one morning and said 'because you remind me of my mother I'm going to call you Mama Lisa,'" she recalls. "At

Albany's Ian Gordon has 'bella' game against Italy

By Mike McGreehan
STAFF WRITER

ALAMEDA — Italy: a country romanticized dreams, a fountain of culture with a rich history of great artists, actors, filmmakers and musicians. Italy: a home to great food and wine, a booted-shaped nation of snow-capped mountains, Roman ruins and picture coastal waters that attracts tourists from around the world.

But there's more. Italy is the home of athletic champions, too. Olympic medal winners — skier Alberto Tomba, runner Pietro Mennea, et al. Great race drivers. Volleyball. Basketball. Cycling's Giro d'Italia. And, oh, the soccer. The nation has won the World Cup three times, the last coming in 1982, and its first division soccer league (known as Serie A to the cognoscenti) is second to none.

Italians are into baseball, too, though it's not nearly as high on the priority list as the sports named above. Still, the Italians have left their imprint on the sport. Their top players are among the best in Europe. The country's national team competed in the Olympics of Barcelona, Atlanta and Sydney, and will participate in the 35th Baseball World Cup in Taipei this November.

Yes, Italian baseball seems to be inching its way up in the world. But it still has a way to go to catch up with the United States, Cuba, Japan, Korea, Taiwan and all other international baseball Titans. That point was driven home at College of Alameda on Tuesday evening when Italy (aka, Lions Baseball Nettuno) failed to hold a three-run lead in an eight-inning 9-6 loss to Alameda in International Boys League World Tournament play.

True, the International Boys League World Tournament is an age-group affair and doesn't rank up there with the Olympics and the Baseball World Cup. But it does serve as a window on the state of the game in the participating countries. And when it comes to the Italian World Team/Lions Baseball Nettuno, the words spoken a generation ago by Joe Garagiola surely ring true today.

Back then, Garagiola — a former player and now a Hall of Fame broadcaster — spoke of a baseball trip to Italy, the native land of his parents. Garagiola acknowledged both the Italians' love for the game as well as fundamental flaws such as missed fly balls. On Tuesday, it was Italian defensive flubs that allowed Alameda to overcome a 6-3 deficit in the last two innings.

Italy, after overcoming a 3-1 deficit, scored three runs to go up 6-3 in the bottom of the sixth inning. Alameda, however, came back to score three runs in the seventh, then three more in the eighth for the win. Catcher Ian Gordon (Albany) had five hits, including a pair of doubles. Gordon's seventh-inning double just missed being a home run by about a foot. His double in the eighth scored Jordan Flores (Alameda High), highlighting a three-run outburst.

On the opposite side, Leonardo DeDonno drove in four of Italy's runs.

An entertaining game, for sure. But the World Tournament involves more than just baseball. It's a cultural exchange, a learning experience not only for the players but all the adults involved, as well.

Baseball in Italy, we learn, has a small following. But as is the case with other Italian sports, those who follow do so with great devotion. One Italian fan was very expressive in support of his team, on one occasion yelling, "Bella palla," to the pitcher for delivering a called strike. In Italy, though, those who play and follow baseball find themselves well outside the sporting mainstream.

"There is very little (interest in baseball among Italians)," Italy manager Alfonso Gualtieri said through the help of translation by Francesco Bakken, one of his players. "There are some fans, but there is no programming of games (on state-run RAI television and radio). Those who know baseball and have pay TV can follow baseball."

Most of the players on the Italy team come from Nettuno, a city about 30 miles south of Rome considered the nation's baseball capital. American troops who landed there in World War II — among them, Joe DiMaggio — played baseball in their spare time. Those living in Nettuno caught the baseball bug.

"DiMaggio went to Nettuno," said Gualtieri, "he started it."

Gualtieri is the leader of Lions Baseball Nettuno, a nonprofit club started in 1995 for players ages 6-15. Similar programs have popped up in other Italian cities, too. But Italy's baseball connection, though loose, goes back many years.

first I didn't like it, but then Al told me to see it as an honor."

That honor became a tradition. She's now the "queen of clinics." Mama Lisa's weekend run clinics on nutrition, running apparel and training have become an integral part of the training program.

Completing the stretching, Coach Al asks the runners to know their own pace and not to go out too fast. He offers a few words about completing marathons.

"Remember, breathing and great form will get you through it," he says. "Running is nothing but a rhythm. I don't care if it's a five-minute rhythm or 10-minute rhythm. It's like dancing. Once you got the rhythm, you've got it."

Before the group disperses to start the run, Coach Al holds a traditional moment of silence for the team's past and present honorees — patients in recovery from leukemia and other blood-related cancers.

With the moment passing, Coach Al asks, "Can I get a 'Go Team! Run your behind off!'"

He gets an exuberant "Go Team! Run your behind off!"

The runners break up into three groups. Coach Al calls the slowest running group his "mellow yellows," the mid-pack runners are known as the "green team" and the fastest runners are dubbed the "red team" or what he sometimes refers to as "speedy demons."

He informs the group that their half-marathon is coming up next weekend. Later this month, they will also have what he calls his "mental toughness" run at Lake Merritt. It will consist of five to six laps around the lake or roughly 14 to 16 miles.

The mental toughness factor is a main part of Coach Al's training method. In fact, one of his favorite mottoes is "No Wimps!" It's an attitude he developed early in his professional coaching career and has since become an integral part of his persona.

"My workouts were so tough I started telling people 'this is no place for a wimp,'" he recalls. "I brought it to TNT and it caught on. That's why we have the 'No wimp' rule in the East Bay."

For Coach Al's teams a tough workout might include waking up at 6 a.m. to go on a 12-mile run in the rain on a Saturday. But that's all just part of developing the mental discipline he feels is needed to complete a marathon.

"My method of training you won't find in a book," he says. "What I teach comes from 30 years of experience."

After the last of the runners completes the one-mile run and cool down, Coach Al leads them towards the steep portion of Dwight Way adjacent to Clark Kerr track. The runners will sprint to the top of the hill twice.

"If you're not feeling well don't do it," he warns. "We don't want you wimping out!"

With Coach Al leading the runners on hill repeats, Mama Lisa puts away the handouts, foldout tables and water bottles. She also takes time to talk with a runner about eating vitamin C supplements and maintaining a healthy diet during training.

It's that commitment to health consciousness, which has allowed Mama Lisa to develop into an ultra-marathoner. Her running career began about 18 years ago when she was more than 100-pounds overweight and started running just to stay warm at her son Eric's soccer games.

Today, at age 54, Mama Lisa weighs in at a trim 112-pounds. Over the last two decades, she has dropped from a size 22 to size four. She attributes the weight loss to maintaining a proper diet and exercise.

Coast leagues in the 1940s and '50s, was born in Lucca but cut his baseball teeth in San Francisco. Likewise, Reno Bertoia — principally a part-time infielder with the Tigers, Senators and A's from 1953 through '62 — was born in Udine but grew up in East Windsor, Ont., as a fan of the nearby Tigers. Bertoia's next-door neighbor in Canada was another Italian immigrant, Beano-born Hank Biasatti, who played briefly with the Philadelphia A's in 1949.

Mostly, though, Italy's connection with baseball has taken place through the sons of immigrants who adopted the game as their own — DiMaggio, Garagiola, Yogi Berra and Oakland-born Hall of Fame catcher Ernie Lombardi among them.

Gualtieri said he was familiar with many of those names, but today's Italian fans are up on the current major league scene, too.

"Roberto Alomar, Randy Johnson, Sammy Sosa, (Mark) McGwire, (Jason) Giambi, (Greg) Maddux, (Mike) Piazza," Gualtieri says, naming some of his favorites.

Baseball — it's not just an American pastime anymore.

Beisebol Brasileiro

Brazil's World Team, which scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to pull out an exciting 12-11 win over Fresno at Willie Stargell Field on Monday, also comes from a nation not normally associated with baseball.

But as it is in Italy, those who follow the sport do so with passion and dedication.

"(Brazilian baseball's biggest following) is found in the Japanese community," said Brazil manager Flavio Imamura. "There are many fans of major league baseball."

A look at the Brazilian baseball confederation Web site provides further proof. A poll on the right side of the screen asks fans — in Portuguese, of course — to input their selection for this season's American League MVP award. The choices are: Jason Giambi, Ichiro Suzuki, Manny Ramirez and Alex Rodriguez.

Suzuki is the likely winner in this poll.

"The favorite team (of most Brazilians) are the Seattle Mariners of Ichiro Suzuki and Kazuhiro Sasaki," Imamura says. "(Our players) hope to follow their example (and get to the major leagues)."

BRIEFS

Coaches needed

Encinal High School in Alameda is immediate need of filling head coaching vacancies for water polo and girls tennis for the fall sports season. Encinal also is looking for head coaches for girls junior varsity basketball and boys varsity soccer for the winter, and for boys varsity tennis and junior varsity baseball in the spring. Call Jim Saunders at 510-749-9458.

Piedmont High School needs to fill seven coaching vacancies for the 2001-2002 school year. The Highlanders are looking for coaches for girls varsity volleyball, girls junior varsity volleyball, boys varsity water polo and junior varsity football for the fall. Piedmont also needs boys junior varsity and freshman basketball coaches for the winter and a boys varsity tennis coach for the spring. Possible teaching positions also are available. Send resumes to Pam Bradford, 800 Magnolia Ave., Piedmont, CA 94611.

Football officials needed

The East Bay Football Officials Association is in need of officials for the high school season. No experience is needed and training and monetary compensation is provided.

The East Bay Football Officials Association serves schools in Oakland, Alameda, Castro Valley, El Cerrito, Hayward, Piedmont, Berkeley and other East Bay communities.

An orientation for new officials will take place at 6:30 p.m. at the Willie Harper Building (314 E. 10th St., Oakland — across the street from the Laney College football field) on Wednesday, Aug. 15.

Those interested in officiating high school games should call 510-521-4121.

Baseball

The lease for Triple Play USA Batting Cages in Emeryville has been extended through June 2002. The cages will stay open for at least one more season. For details, call 510-652-HITS.

Dale Daniels will hold his 13th annual Summer Day Baseball Camp at Linda Beach Field in Piedmont, Aug. 20-22. The camp, for players 7-12, will run noon-3 p.m. each day. Campers will be grouped according to age and skill level. Fee is $145 per player. The camp will emphasizes solid fundamental instruction of all phases of baseball in a low-key environment. Call Dale Daniels at 510-522-2424 or fax him at 510-428-2698.

Golf

The Galbraith Junior Golf Program is open to players 7-18 interested in learning the game.

The program meets every Saturday from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Chabot Golf Course.

The program also invites members of the business community to get involved through group and scholarship sponsorships.

For details, call program coordinator Clarence Washington at 510-569-5982, or e-mail program adviser Michael Salem at oaklandboyz@aol.com.

Donations needed

The Smart Moves/East Oakland Boxing Association needs donations. The EOBA, which uses boxing as a lure, attracts at-risk youths to a unique mixture of academics and recreation.

The EOBA provides free homework tutoring, mentoring, computer skills training, health and safety education, arts and crafts, senior citizen projects, youth employment and training programs.

The EOBA, which opened its doors in 1990, serves an average of 150-200 youths ages 6-20 per week.

St. Mary's College men's basketball guard Jovan Harris may not return to the Gaels for the 2001-02 season.

Harris, the leading scorer for the 2-27 Gaels at 15.1 points per game, didn't say whether he will be back or not.

But St. Mary's sports information director Rich Davi confirmed that Harris is not on the roster for the upcoming year. New men's basketball coach Randy Bennett was out of town on a recruiting trip and unavailable for comment.

Harris, who will be a junior this season, said he has yet to make a decision on his future.

"I haven't made a move yet," the former El Cerrito star said. "I'm just in a tight situation right now. A whole lot of stuff is going on."

What the ads tell us

One can learn from TV. But in order to do so, one must pay closer attention than normal. For example, here are a few of the things I've learned from TV commercials just this week:

■ You can save up to 80 percent on jewelry by buying direct from the factory.

■ There are such things as award-winning barbecuers."

■ At one casino eatery in Reno, I can experience "the thrill of tableside carving."

■ "Sausage is toast."

■ Chicken has risen nearly to the top in pizza meat toppings, and now ranks behind only pepperoni.

■ Speaking of which, pizza deliverers are now allowed to wear a fifth slice in their rat-

■ If kids want to get online with a cable modem, they'd have to do so from 1-3 a.m.

■ Somewhat surprisingly, Barbra Streisand's husband apparently works in a transmission shop.

■ If you can't remember the name of your disability casualty insurer while on a roller coaster, a helpful goose in the seat just behind yours will gladly remind you.

Media notes: Two major shake-ups in morning TV this week: KRON morning news anchor John Kestler has left the station after several years. Stay tuned for details...And KTVU sources tell me they're shocked by the sudden and unexpected departure of "Mornings on 2" co-anchor Mark Pitta, a local stand-up comic and East Bay resident. Says one Channel 2 insider, "Mark left a note saying he was burned out, that he didn't have a contract and was leaving, and that he was leaving town." Again, stay tuned for more details.

...sources tell me that their days are numbered at struggling oldies station KFRC — which would be the pedestrian morning team of Ron and Rhonda (Parker, Blackstone). "They're staying on until a new morning team can be found," says one station insider. I also hear that former KFRC "boss jock" Dave "The Duke" Sholin and Bobby Ocean may return to the KFRC mike soon. That would give the station a much-needed boost; both guys are local radio legends. Sholin is the station's former programmer; Ocean occasionally heard on Clear Radio's morning talk show. Ocean, who has a commercial-production business, is the station's stentorian promotional voice. The funny Ocean's been doing fill-in shifts recently on the upgraded oldies station, where he says he loves it. It's a surprise at tight-fisted Infinity (KFRC's owner). The station is paying $300,000 (the most I've heard the AM team has paid to the mediocre likes of Ron and Cammy — or just about anyone, for that matter — in a long time. A thing of the past. Ex-KFRC's new morning talent, whomever he/she/they may be, is going to make a lot less than that.

Talk about the perfect answer: On NBC's "Today" this morning, the attorney representing the Bahamian parents of the boy in a shark attack was interviewed. And it was none other than — I'm not making this up — Johnnie Cochran. Some people just kinda write themselves. OK, I'm not the movie critic here — let's call this an advance review on a movie that's destined for video soon. I've seen the French comedy "The Closet" not once, but twice. Highly recommended. Both times I saw it, the audience applauded ... A TV rarity: I actually saw a "Seinfeld" rerun on TV that I hadn't seen before. I usually tape the show every week. Has this happened to anybody lately? ... Speaking of that show, many TV critics are predicting an early demise for the new ABC sitcom starring Jenna Elfman. The most talented of the

CHEESY FRAY: John Cleese launches the troops into a battle of avarice in "Rat Race."

Hey, we smell a rat, and it's dang funny

By Mary F. Pols
STAFF WRITER

There's nothing new about "Rat Race," and that's perfectly fine. It takes its cues from the madcap movies of the mid-1960s, like "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" and "The Great Race," and as such is so unabashedly retro, you almost expect to see a board game based on it in the Restoration Hardware catalogue.

It's also the first truly funny movie of the summer, the kind that makes you feel 12 years old with milk coming out of your nose. It's absurd, broad slapstick, heavily reliant on sight gags that you know could never happen in a million years, but does that really matter if it makes you weep with laughter at least once? And with minimal use of flatulence jokes! Can America handle this?

Moreover, "Rat Race" offers redemption to a whole parcel of comic actors, some of whom we were entirely sick of (Whoopi Goldberg) and some of whom we thought we loathed (Rowan Atkinson of "Bean") and some of whom really, really needed to lighten up (Cuba Gooding Jr.). For this treat, we find ourselves in the unusual position of feeling grateful to director Jerry Zucker ("Ghost" and "Airplane!").

The premise is that a Las Vegas casino owner played by John Cleese, desperate to give his high-stakes gamblers a new diversion, has come up with his own take on "Survivor." Stash $2 million in a locker in Silver City, Nev., hand out six keys to random hotel guests and tell them whoever gets there first keeps the money. The gamblers place bets on who will win.

Cleese, wearing a set of bright white false teeth, imparts this information to the bemused gang, then waves his long arms and blithely commands them to "Go!"

Art imitates love life only in S.F. theater

JACK TUCKER
Community Theater

IT'S UNDER-the-gun time for theater clock and calendar watchers today. A tantalizing improv piece plays tonight only at the Bayfront Theatre in San Francisco's Fort Mason Center. And within days on this side of the Bay, a couple of auditions are scheduled for two zesty comedic honkers you might try for to end your year on an upbeat note.

Tonight's catch-it-or-miss-it, once-over-lightly is "How First We Met," presented at the Fort Mason Theatre by Bay Area Theatresports. Here's how it works:

Couples from the audience are interviewed about how they met and fell in love. Then — and, folks, this is a reality show created before your very eyes — an ensemble of talented improvisers plays off the interviews with spontaneous vignettes.

Funny? Well, let's see what some BATS insiders have to say:

"Improv is more than just being funny," says William Hall, a founding member of the troupe and the interviewer for tonight's romp. "It's a way to connect the players with the audience on a deeper level."

The director, Jill Bourque, agrees. "Improvisational acting is rich with possibilities for both poignant and comedic moments in theater," she says, adding archly, "Good improv is like an audience aphrodisiac."

Now there's a paragraph where the caboose zipped into the station ahead of the engine.

In addition to Hall and Bourque, the cast of "How We First Met" includes Dan O'Connor, Laura Derry, Paul Erskine, Rich Ross and Ann Swanberg. The musical improviser is J. Raoul Brody. Mark Rachel is the improv lightician.

The Bayfront Theatre is on the third floor of Building B at Fort Mason. The show starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are $15. Call 415-474-8935.

UNSTOPPABLE STOPPARD: The first audition is for Tom Stoppard's "Travesties," an amusing yet profoundly intellectual fantasy from this marvelous ringmaster of the English language.

Actors Ensemble of Berkeley, the city's oldest stage company, will produce the play for weekend performances Oct. 19 through Nov. 17 at Live Oak Theatre, 1301 Shattuck Ave.

Auditions will be at the theater Monday and Tuesday, starting at 7 p. m.

There are parts for five men and three women in a wide age range of 20 to 70. Director Mikel Clifford would like to hear a two-minute piece, or actors can read from the script.

No appointment is needed, and there is no pay. Call 510-525-1620 or go to www.actors-ensembleofberkeley.com.

"Travesties" is an audacious blending of such disparate ingredients as Lenin, James Joyce and Dada artist Tristan Tzara — all of whom lived in Zurich, Switzerland, during World War I.

The place and time are important. It was then and there that Joyce produced Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." He cast a British consular official by the name of

Sculpture and water creations on display

"Water Visions 2001," an outdoor show of contemporary sculptures in which water is an integral medium, is on display at New Leaf Gallery through Sept. 2.

The free show features some 50 works that offer alternatives to the traditional imitations of European fountains. The materials include bronze, marble, granite, stainless steel, copper, ceramic, glass, concrete and multimedia. All produce unique musical sounds when combined with water.

Works by David Fried and more than 80 other artists are displayed throughout the year at the outdoor sculpture gallery, which is located at 1286 Gilman St.

All items are for sale.

The hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. For more information, call 510-525-7621.

Below are capsule reviews of movies playing at area theaters. The reviewers are Vera H-C Chan and Mary F. Pols, Times; Glenn Lovell, San Jose Mercury News; Robert W. Butler and Desmond Ryan, Knight Ridder Newspapers; Anthony Breznican, Matt Crenson, David Germain, Chris Grygiel, Christy Lemire, Sheila Norman-Culp, Malcolm Ritter, Bob Thomas and Matt Wolf, Associated Press; John Anderson, Bob Heisler and Gene Seymour, Newsday; Stephen Holden, Dave Kehr, Elvis Mitchell and A.O. Scott, New York Times; Jack Mathews, New York Daily News; Bob Strauss and Glenn Whipp, Los Angeles Daily News; Kenneth Turan and Kevin Thomas, Los Angeles Times; Henry Sheehan, Orange County Register; Mark Caro and Robert K. Elder, Chicago Tribune; Gary Dowell, Tom Sime, Chris Vognar and Philip Wuntch, Dallas Morning News; and Desson Howe, Washington Post.

"THE ADVENTURES OF FELIX": A jaunty, lighthearted road movie about a gay man (Sami Bouajila) who journeys to find the father he never met. After losing his job, Felix thumbs his way across France, meeting an eccentric and eclectic cast of characters. The film is by nature episodic and fragmented, but what it lacks in narrative thrust is more than compensated for by its emotional development and the performance of Bouajila. — R. Butler. (NR: sexual situations.) 1 hour, 35 minutes. B

"AMERICAN PIE 2": Wafer-thin and hastily-baked, this sequel doesn't live up to the original, even with the whole cast back for a second go-round. The gang is still obsessed with sex, and probably will remain so until "American Pie 12," when they will become obsessed with their receding hairlines. There are a few amusing scenes, featuring Jason Biggs, Eugene Levy and Alyson Hannigan, but overall, the sweetness is gone and everything feels forced. Settle for renting the first one. — M. Pols. (R: strong sexual content, crude humor, language and drinking.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. C-

"AMERICA'S SWEETHEARTS": An insider look at the Hollywood machine, filled with spot-on parodies of celebrities, spiritual healers, studio heads, movie directors, publicists and even members of the illustrious entertainment press corps. The jokes skip along merrily in the beginning, and you settle back feeling a tad irritated by the cutesy tinkling score, but generally good about what's to come. Unfortunately, what's to come includes an unbelievable love story and a pat ending right out of "Notting Hill." Featuring an all-star cast doing mostly nice ensemble work, especially Billy Crystal, Stanley Tucci and John Cusack. We don't see much of Julia Roberts, though; she's outshone by the dynamic Catherine Zeta-Jones, playing a detestable diva. — M. Pols. (PG-13: language and some crude and sexual humor.) 1 hour, 50 minutes. B-

"THE ANNIVERSARY PARTY": An astute, sharp-witted movie about relationships, aspirations and insecurity that's nearly great. Jennifer Jason-Leigh and Alan Cumming co-wrote, co-direct and co-star in a story about a famous actress named Sally and writer/director Joe, a Hollywood couple who've recently reunited after a breakup. They invite all of their friends and a couple of enemies to celebrate with them. The acting is strong across the board, but the rarely seen Phoebe Cates is outstanding as Sally's best friend, an actress who gave it all up to be with her children. Unfortunately, Leigh and Cumming bail on the plot at the end, and there are two jarring revelations, one completely unbelievable, that deflate the movie's power. — M. Pols. (R: language, drug use and nudity.) 1 hour, 55 minutes. A-

"APOCALYPSE NOW REDUX": Francis Ford Coppola and editor Walter Murch have gone back to the original footage of the 1979 classic Vietnam film and added 49 minutes. The result is a major time commitment but also deeper, smoother and ultimately more fulfilling. More Playboy Playmates, more Robert Duvall, more time on the boat, a touch more Brando. Well worth a trip to the multiplex, even though not everything new is a flat-out success; the French plantation scene is flawed by bad acting, but Coppola's admirable intent, to explore the impact of colonization on the country and the colonizers, makes his story more well-rounded. You may find, if you watch the original after seeing this, that you miss the new additions. — M. Pols. (R: disturbing violent images, language, sexual content and some drug use.) 3 hours, 17 minutes. A

"ATLANTIS: THE LOST EMPIRE": Given that it's set in 1914, you might expect Disney's latest animation effort to be a gentle, old-fashioned archaeological quest. Instead, it's a thoroughly modern affair, complete with tank tops, New Age crystals and explosions galore. Earnest explorer Milo Thatch (voiced by Michael J. Fox) sets out to find Atlantis. He thinks it's an educational trip, but the nefarious Commander has dastardly plans for stealing the life source from the lost realm. There's some good humor, but the two-dimensional animation feels like a bore after "Shrek." — M. Pols. (PG: action violence.) 1 hour, 32 minutes. C

"BABY BOY": Writer/director John Singleton has made a bold attempt to say something serious about African-American men within a largely comic context. The result is a conundrum, a crowd-pleaser about chronic multigenerational irresponsibility. "Baby boy" refers generically to young black men who won't grow up, but here it refers to Jody (Tyrese Gibson), who has two children by two different women and still lives with his mama. We follow his compelling struggles to become a man. With impressive acting, much of it by newcomers Gibson and Taraji P. Henson, playing the mother of Jody's older child. Singleton makes some mistakes, like overstating his metaphors, but displays a gift for social satire that's reminiscent of Norman Lear. — M. Pols. (R: strong sexuality, language, violence and some drug use.) 2 hours, 2 minutes. B

"BRIDGET JONES'S DIARY": To play the romantically challenged British singleton in this adaptation of Helen Fielding's hilarious best-selling novel, Renee Zellweger put on the pounds. She's gloriously puffy-faced, she chain-smokes, she's foul-mouthed, and yet completely endearing. Her search for love includes dalliances with the office scoundrel, Daniel (Hugh Grant, playing the ultimate cad) and Mark Darcy (Colin Firth), who is both haughty and desperately attractive. Lightweight fare, but pure entertainment. — M. Pols. (R: language and some strong sexuality.) 1 hour, 35 minutes. A-

"BROTHER": High-octane action from Beat Takeshi, who not only stars but serves as director and writer for this stylized adventure that's set in Tokyo and Los Angeles. When his boss is rubbed out in Japan, an underworld figure (Takeshi) heads to L.A., where he and his half-brother (Claude Maki) take on the drug business. It sounds a bit like a Steven Seagal film, but in Takeshi's hands, "Brother" is filled with karmic retribution and a sense of style that you simply can't ignore. Omar Epps co-stars. — E. Mitchell. (R: pervasive strong violence, language and brief nudity.) 1 hour, 53 minutes. B.

"CATS & DOGS": This beguiling over-the-top movie has a deceptively simple plot that's utterly inspired. Cats and dogs are at war in the back yards of the world, and human beings have no idea. Any pet owner could tell you, of course they are. A scientist has come up with a formula to stop dog allergies, and if the cats don't steal it, dog popularity will soar to new heights. There's major James Bond spoofing going on here, as well as liberal theft from the "Babe" genre, but the movie is packed with hearty, sweet laughs. The computerized critters don't always work, but the real ones, particularly a heart-melting beagle, are cute enough to compensate. The human cast includes Jeff Goldblum and Elizabeth Perkins. — M Pols. (PG: animal action and humor.) 1 hour, 23 minutes. B+

"THE CLOSET": Sad sack Francois Pignon (Daniel Auteuil) is about to get fired from his job at the condom factory, until his neighbor comes up with an ingenious plan to save his job. Ali Pignon has to do is pretend to be homosexual and his employers wouldn't be able to fire him without appearing discriminatory. Yet as soon as his co-workers think he's gay, a drab little man turns into something exciting and new. A smart comedy of errors, with many good laughs. Gerard Depardieu co-stars as a gay-bashing soccer coach forced into sensitivity. In French with subtitles. — M. Pols. (R: sexuality and language.) 1 hour, 25 minutes. B+

"THE CRIMSON RIVERS": There's style to spare in this grotesque thriller about serial killings in an Alpine college town. The tension is palpable, even though the narrative fizzles toward the climax. Jean Reno plays the

You'll want to shoot Ricky yourself, but there's something brilliant about Vaughn's performance. — M. Pols (R: language and brief scenes of sexuality.) 1 hour 35 minutes. B

"MEMENTO": Christopher Nolan's thriller is told backward in roughly 10-minute increments, which has made it buzz central among the spring releases. But even after two viewings, Memento comes off more as a clever gag than a piece of wildly innovative filmmaking. It's set up to reward the sharp-eyed viewer: Figure out what's going on and pat yourself on the back for being in the same intellectual stratosphere as the filmmaker. Still, Guy Pearce couldn't be better as Leonard, a former insurance claims investigator who's on a mission to find his wife's killer, but is hampered by having no short-term memory. — M. Pols. (R: violence, drug content and some language.) 1 hour, 53 minutes. B

"MOULIN ROUGE": Director Baz Luhrmann's relentless musical drama exudes so much energy that it throws up what amounts to a nearly impenetrable force field around itself. There's certainly something endearing about how much effort he and his co-stars, Nicole Kidman and Ewan McGregor, playing star-crossed lovers in turn-of-the-century Paris, have put into trying to woo us. Kidman is spectacular; she's pure courage. But despite flashes of true creativity, some inspired musical choices and a consistently startling opulence, the movie fails. It's just too much: gaping mouths, flailing limbs, wildly intercut scenes that make it impossible to focus. Luhrmann is in such a hurry to show us everything in his toy chest that there isn't time to savor anything. — M. Pols. (PG-13: sexuality.) 2 hours. B-

"ORIGINAL SIN": At least seven deadly sins of rotten filmmaking are committed in this thrill-less romantic thriller starring Antonio Banderas and Angelina Jolie, grating melodramatics; bad dialogue; tiresome voice-overs; hack editing; overbearing music; cheesy camerawork; and unpleasant characters with incomprehensible motivations. The occasionally pretty sets and costumes are the high points as Jolie stars as a mail-order bride with a deadly agenda. Stay away. — D. Germain. (R: strong sexual content and some violence.) 1 hour, 56 minutes. D-

"OSMOSIS JONES": Part animation and part live-action, this film co-directed by the Farrelly brothers also is part entertainment and part public service message on the benefits of exercise and a sensible diet. It has its amusing moments as Bill Murray plays a junk-food addict whose inner workings are shown in vivid detail when he ingests a tainted egg. The live-action sequences are curiously limp, and unlike the human body — a remarkable engine of body parts working in conjunction — "Osmosis Jones" never manages to fire on all its synapses. — D. Germain. (PG: bodily humor.) 1 hour, 37 minutes. C+

"OUR SONG ": A documentarylike feel (and that's a good thing) pervades this fine little film about a few summer days with three high-school girls in Crown Heights, Brooklyn. You watch them rehearse with their marching band, eavesdrop as they walk down the street or chat and see them shoplift, come to grips with their parents, etc. The movie draws you deeply into the world of these friends as dramas both little and big unfold. When it ends with more questions than answers, you really care what will happen to the characters. A remarkable feature film debut for many of the actresses involved. — M. Ritter. (R: language.) 1 hour, 36 minutes. B+

"THE OTHERS": Spanish director Alejandro Amenabar's first English-language feature is an old-fashioned haunted house story, with all the requisite claustrophobia and creepiness. On the foggy isle of Jersey in 1945, Nicole Kidman is waiting for her husband to return from the war, with nothing but her two children and her strange trio of new servants for company. Kidman is at her chilly best, and the youngsters who play her spooked and spooky children, Alakina Mann and James Bentley, are excellent. Amenabar is a bracing filmmaker, but the "surprise" ending of the film is a bit of a letdown. You may come out thinking, that was it? — M. Pols. (PG-13: thematic elements and frightening moments.) 1 hour, 38 minutes. B

"PLANET OF THE APES": Director Tim Burton's version of Pierre Boulle's classic sci-fi novel is unusually beautiful and filled with spooky visual qualities. If this movie needed to be remade — and you could argue it didn't — Burton, with his impish imagination, was the man for the job. Mark Wahlberg makes a sturdy astronaut, Helena Bonham Carter a fetching ape. Some of the supporting actors are unfortunately hard to recognize, particularly Michael Clarke Duncan's bad guy Attar and Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa's good guy Krull. There's a neat trick revealed late in the game involving the apes' origins, but the final moments, while true to Boulle's dark vision, make irritatingly little sense. — M. Pols. (PG-13: action violence.) 1 hour, 59 minutes. B-

"THE PRINCESS DIARIES": Gratuitous movies are a rarity these days, so perhaps we should be grateful for director Garry Marshall's cheery family comedy. It's a variation on the Pretty Woman theme, with the charming Anne Hathaway in the Julia Roberts role. She's a frumpy, klutzy duckling who discovers she's actually a princess from a small European country. Granny/queen Julie Andrews administers the makeover. Hector Elizondo offers snippets of wisdom. A vapid pleasure, but don't bother unless you have kids. — M. Pols. (G) 1 hour, 1 hour, 55 minutes. B-

"RUSH HOUR 2": Peppy unpretentious fun with a paper-thin plot. It's a rush job of a sequel. Jackie Chan and Chris Tucker are back, chasing bad guys through Hong Kong, L.A. and Las Vegas, cracking jokes all the way. Some of them fall flat, but there are still many good chuckles here. Chan, more comfortable with English now, is a gem, but director Brett Ratner blows the buzz by showing us a series of outtakes at the end that are far funnier than anything we've seen to date. — M. Pols. (PG-13: action violence, language and some sexual material.) 1 hour, 29 minutes C+

"THE SCORE": A smart, well-executed and satisfying thriller that just happens to feature acting legends from three generations, Robert De Niro, Edward Norton and, gasp, Marlon Brandon. Director Frank Oz, typically a light-comedy guy, shows a sure hand in weaving a consistently suspenseful movie, despite the fact that the setup, the old one-last-heist-before-retirement gag, is completely tired. Brando's role isn't much more than a cameo, and De Niro doesn't do anything new, but Norton steals all his scenes as a punk kid who joins forces with De Niro for the heist. Some may be bothered by the nearly languid pace in outlining the criminal's methods, but it's a relief after the wham-bam of most action movies. — M. Pols. (R: language.) 2 hours, 1 minute. B+

"SEXY BEAST": First-time feature director Jonathan Glazer's zingy movie, about a retired mobster (Ray Winstone) whose terrifying former colleague (Ben Kingsley) wants him to do just one more job, is remarkable mostly for Kingsley's astonishing performance. Seeing Gandhi play someone as scary as any of Robert De Niro's darker characters is quite a charge. You start out thinking it's a parody, but by the end you're just as desperate as the retired mobster to be free of him. — M. Pols. (R: sexual encounters, extreme violence, language.) 1 hour, 28 minutes. B+

"SHREK": An animated visual marvel, with all the beauty and realism of a Chris Van Allsburg children's book. Shrek (voiced by Mike Myers) is an insecure ogre, who makes a deal with evil Lord Farquaad (John Lithgow) to procure him a bride. Accompanied by a hilarious donkey (Eddie Murphy at his best), Shrek goes to rescue Princess Fiona (Cameron Diaz) from a dragon-guarded tower on high, and unexpectedly finds love. Plenty of bathroom humor (perhaps too much) for the kids, with some clever, more sophisticated stuff for parents. — M. Pols. (PG: mild language and some crude humor.) 1 hour 27 minutes. B+

"STARTURP.COM": A riveting and tragic tale of two childhood friends who shared a dream of Internet success, saw their star rise and then watched it plummet even faster. The story has inherent human drama. And in the sure hands of co-director Chris Hegedus and her husband/producer, D.A. Pennebaker, they've created a poignant, insightful snapshot of our times, a personal look of our times, economy ... and society. — C. Lemire. (R: language.) 1 hour, 43 minutes. B+

"THOMAS IN LOVE": An extraordinary little import from France revolves around an agoraphobic named Thomas who hasn't left his home in eight years. When he fires of his self-imposed exile, Thomas starts looking for love, with some interesting sexy, smart and even moving consequences. — G. Lovell. (R: cybersex sequences.) 1 hour, 37 minutes. B

"WITH A FRIEND LIKE HARRY": Sad sack Michel (Laurent Lucas), saddled with three kids, a grumpy wife and a pair of annoying parents, needs help getting his life together. Along comes Harry (Sergi Lopez) — an old high school classmate who admires Michel's former self just a little too much — with a most peculiar and nefarious way of helping. A wickedly funny dark comedy that owes a lot to Hitchcock but still manages to be fresh. In French with English subtitles. — M. Pols. (R: language, some violence and a scene of nudity.) 1 hour, 57 minutes. A-

"Seinfeld" foursome, Jason Alexander. Aside from the fact that Alexander's new comedy has been recast and reshot (à la Michael Richards' NBC bomb last year), Jason's new "Bob Patterson" has another problem: ABC has placed it directly opposite NBC megahit "Frasier" at 9 p.m. Tuesdays. So you might say TV star Jason will have trouble being Master of His Own Domain ... Hardly a week passes when an East Bay reader doesn't complain about feckless KRON reporter Wallis Avillar. But there was Avillar again this week, quavery voice and all, reporting a lead story.

KGO-TV's new news director is another Fresno import: Kevin Keeshan worked at KGO-TV for six years as a producer until heading to Fresno in 1998. He hates it when I mention that he's related to Captain Kangaroo, Bob Keeshan, but it's true. He's a nephew or something; Keeshan once sent me a terse note saying he WASN'T Bob's kid ... Speaking of Fresno, one of Johnny Carson's classic lines is how he could spot people in his audience who were from Fresno: "They look like they're suffering from camper lag." ... Several KGO reporters recently have also been shuttled in from Channel 7's ABC sister station/farm team out in Raisinville. It appears that all news KCBS is about to go digital — finally. KCBS, because of tight-fisted owner Infinity (see KFRC item above) has been the last major station to use eight-track tapes for commercials, and its staff had to use the ancient razor blade-and-tape method to edit tapes. Even when the first-rate news station moved into new studios on Battery Street (it now shares space at "Gray Rock" with KPIX TV) the old equipment from Embarcadero One came along. Newsroom staffers report that they're now training on AP's new software and are learning the new digital commercial system. "We should be digital in September," said one dismayed newsroom staffer, sighing, "but we should have been digital years ago." Most other major radio stations — and many smaller ones around the Bay Area — went digital some time ago ...

If there are even more than the usual number of gaffes and typos today, I apologize: I've been slogging through 30 new network fall TV shows. So, you may ask, how's the new season shaping up? Let's put it this way: Don't get your hopes up. Again. ... Speaking of the new season, since The WB lost "Buffy" to UPN — the latter's now being called the Used Parts Network after also taking WB's "Roswell" — WB has decided to move its best show, "The Gilmore Girls," into "Buffy's" old time spot this fall — Tuesdays at 8. It's running the witty and so ill written "Gilmore Girls" twice weekly in August — Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8. Here's a great chance to catch up with this acclaimed first-year series. "Gilmore Girls" is that rarest of shows — one you can watch with a teenager and both will like it ... Speaking of teenagers, these three low-income, at-risk East Bay success stories will be among those profiled on a KRON special at 7 p.m. Tuesday. "Beating the Odds," hosted by Wendy Tokuda: Berkeley's Daniel Gladstone, a hearing-impaired recent St. Mary's High grad; Skyline High's Aisha Johnson, who was left homeless by family deaths and still managed a 3.2 GPA; and Sherrice Perry, who lost her mother but got a perfect 4.0 at Alameda's Arthur Anderson Community Learning Center and has been accepted at Brown. Inspirational stories all...

Finally, something else I learned from commercials — about 8,500 times this week: It's Shoe Week at Ross. The ad for this was running simultaneously on four different local stations Monday around 5 p.m. It almost goes without saying that this is especially draining — on the batteries in one's remote control.

Henry Carr in the role of Algernon. And thereby hangs a tale. And there also lurks a hint of the odd places Stoppard looks at for such incredible ideas for a play.

OK, actors, there's your challenge. Stoppard has laid out the hurdles and turns of this verbal gymkhana. If you are cast, can you and the others with Clifford's direction help AE pull it off?

NEW TAKE ON 'CAROL': The second audition is farther down the road — Aug. 26 at 2:30 p.m. and Aug. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Masquers Playhouse, 105 Park Place, Point Richmond.

Robert Taylor is directing "Inspecting Carol," a seasonal slice of hilarity as nutty and dense with laughs as a holiday fruit cake.

The comedy is described as "A Christmas Carol" meeting "The Government Inspector" meeting "Noises Off." Now why didn't Stoppard think of that before Daniel Sullivan and the Seattle Repertory Theatre beat him to it?

A man drops into a small theater and asks to audition. He is mistaken for an informer for the National Endowment for the Arts.

Naturally, everyone cozies up to the wannabe who is cast in the forthcoming production of "A Christmas Carol."

If you're familiar with "Noises Off," the comedic theater's tribute to Murphy's Law — if anything can go wrong, it will — you can figure "Inspecting Carol" will have a risen-from-the-grave Dickens known hereafter as Whirling Charlie.

Parts are for seven men (one African-American), four women and one child, age 12 or 13.

No appointment. No pay. Auditions based on cold readings from the script. Performance dates are weekends from Nov. 9 through Dec. 22.

You can call the director at 510-758-1436 for more information.

REVIEW

■ WHAT: "Rat Race"

■ STARRING: Rowan Atkinson, John Cleese, Whoopi Goldberg, Cuba Gooding Jr., Seth Green, Jon Lovitz

■ RATING: PG-13 (sexual references, crude humor, partial nudity, language)

■ RUNNING TIME: 1 hour, 52 minutes

■ WHERE: Opens today at area theaters

■ GRADE: A-

Then there's Owen (Gooding), an NFL referee who became legendary the weekend before for making the worst call in pro football history. He's now so reviled, he has nothing to lose. Unemployed family man Randy (Jon Lovitz) hopes to win the race without telling his wife (Kathy Najimy) or hideous children, even though they're jammed into his minivan. Rounding out the group are the Cody brothers, Duane (Seth Green) and Blaine (Vince Vieluf), hapless con artists who throw themselves at the movie's physical-comedy challenges like a pair of lost Marx Brothers.

Along the way to Silver City, there are many hilarious jokes, including what's turning out to be a requisite poke at the mentally challenged (but, God help me, I laughed hard) and a series of gags about the gamblers back in Vegas. A few of Breckman's jokes, such as one involving attorney Gloria Allred, miss, but most don't.

It's not just the script that keeps "Rat Race" humming along. The pace is fast and clever — it has to be with this many characters — and the cast is on its toes the whole time. Lovitz is actually fun to watch, while Gooding finally gets to let loose with the pure physical humor that made him so delightful in "Jerry Maguire." Then, just when you've forgotten he exists, Zucker cuts back to the brilliant Atkinson.

Initially, probably because of the Vera-Merrill story line, I had worries that Breckman was going to shove some lessons about family closeness down our throats along with the comedy. Thankfully, "Rat Race" steers clear of such pitfalls until the very end, when it draws to a not entirely successful close with a message about greed, delivered at a Smash Mouth concert (is anyone else sick of "hey now, you're a rock star"?). But despite this stumble at the finish line, "Rat Race" is still the most winning comedy we've yet seen this summer.

"We serve Texas-style," says Cheryl Lu, daughter of owner Nancy. "Huge portions," she explains. Daily lunch specials come with a choice of entree, half the portion size of the dinner entree, accompanied by spring rolls, salad with spicy peanut dressing, soup and a choice of rice or chow mein. "All this for around $5. We also make the dishes customized to comply with our customers' desire for spiciness."

Tsing Tao pot stickers are one of the most popular appetizers ordered. They arrive at your table plump, juicy and crisp. Szechwan Chicken is another favorite dish made with breast of chicken pieces, coated in a light batter and sauteed in a semi-sweet and spicy sauce. A wide selection of vegetarian dishes can be found on the menu. A nice selection of beer and Napa Valley wine is also available.

Help Tsing Tao celebrate its 20th anniversary. Wish them "Happy Anniversary" and get 10% off your bill. This offer is good until September 30, 2001. Come for lunch or come for dinner. They are located at 1479 Solano Avenue in Albany, and are open every day. Their hours are Sunday through Thursday, 11:30 a.m. - 9:30 p.m., and Friday and Saturday from 11:30 a.m. - 10 p.m. Reservations are welcome.

GMC SIERRA 1500 HD makes parking a challenge because of its size, extending out 237 inches in length. It's powered by the Vortec 6000 V-8 engine.

2001 GMC Sierra: one large pickup that has it all

TOM KEANE
Keane on Wheels

Navigating the 2001 GMC Sierra 1500 HD pickup this past week has been a challenging learning experience.

Trying to park the extra-long truck required skills beyond my ability. The Sierra is a full-size heavy-duty pickup with a full-size crew cab plus a large box bringing the overall length to 237 inches.

As a result of the extra length, the wheelbase is about 20 inches longer than on most pickups, which was the cause of the parking problems. Picture trying to park a school bus in a perpendicular slot in a shopping center parking lot.

When parking the Sierra, because of its length and width, my main concern was not scraping vehicles on either side.

The box on this pickup is slightly wider than 4 feet between the wheel wells. With the gate up, the box is about 6.5 feet long. With the tailgate down this truck can easily carry 4x8 boards stacked about 20 inches high.

The Sierra interior is a completely different environment — similar to a sedan — with plenty of room for five adults. My tester had leather seating surfaces and was loaded with all the comforts of a luxurious automobile.

The Sierra 1500 HD has a base price of $32,240, but with $3,420 in extras plus destination charge, the bottom line is $36,380. For that price, one expects a load of amenities, and GMC doesn't disappoint. The Sierra has all the pleasures of a limousine.

The back seat can seat three, but with the center arm rest down, two passengers have plenty of room to stretch and relax. Even if the center seat is required, no one is crowded.

The two front seats are comfortably large, and the driver's seat has additional power controls for lumbar and side bolster support. With six-way power-operated seats plus a tilt steering wheel the driver can easily find an optimum driving position.

All controls are within easy reach and most only require a touch of a button to operate. Such is the case with the four-wheel drive. There are four selections: 2WD, 4WD, 4WD low and 4WD auto.

This truck is powered by the Vortec 6000 V-8 engine that produces 300 horsepower. This year, it maximizes at 4,400 rpm compared to 4,800 for last year. The GMC people say the engine is calibrated to 200,000 miles of service life without any major repairs.

The truck is rated at 8,500 gross vehicle weight, and has a towing

Real estate owner still uses 1939 Plymouth pickup, but not every day

VERN PARKER
Classic Classics

Although the most recent news about the Plymouth line concerns its unfortunate demise, its history offers an interesting story.

Introduced by Chrysler in July 1928, the line was successful from the beginning, Plymouth's sales figures actually rose during the early 1930s, even after the 1929 stock market crash.

In 1937, Chrysler's sales of low-priced vehicles were rivaling Chevrolet and Ford at such levels that it warranted the addition of a pickup truck.

However, pickup trucks with the name PLYMOUTH stamped in the tailgate faded from the automotive scene before World War II.

From 1937 to 1941, a five-year total of 34,462 Plymouth pickups were manufactured until corporate minds decided that selling a rebadged Dodge truck with the Plymouth name didn't make economic sense.

In 1939, a Plymouth Express pickup rolling on 6 x 16-inch tires was shipped to Florida.

The body rode on top of a ladder-frame chassis supported by a 116-inch wheel base The 2,800-pound pickup, one of 6,181 produced that year, carried a base price of $575.

The original owner kept the truck for more than five decades before his son-in-law took it to Illinois. After four years, it was sold to a Maryland man, who also kept it four years before putting it on the market in 2000.

Long before that, Jack Gallagher became interested in antique vehicles. For several years he educated himself about the antique car hobby. In September 2000, Gallagher found the 1939 Plymouth pickup for sale in Hagerstown, Md.

After inspecting the dark green vehicle with black fenders, he began negotiating its price with the owner. It took three months to negotiate a deal.

Finally, a friend drove Gallagher to fetch the truck. First thing he found: The odometer beneath the 90-mph speedometer showed 52,285 miles — a figure that had to be taken on faith.

Switching on the ignition, Gallagher watched the temperature and oil pressure gauges to the left of the speedometer begin to register. The fuel gauge and ammeter to the right of the speedometer also showed signs of life.

Settling in behind the three-spoke steering wheel with only a horn button at the hub, Gallagher stepped on the floor starter, marveling at the sound of the trusty six-cylinder engine as it sprang to life.

He knew that the replacement engine was similar to the original.

He found the gearshift lever to operate the three-speed transmission sprouting from the floor. Beside the gearshift lever was the hand brake.

After releasing the brake, Gallagher worked his way through the gears, double-clutching all the way.

He admitted he wanted to slow down to 1939 shift speeds. "That way I don't grind a quarter pound of gears with each shift," he explained.

Driving his treasure home, Gallagher found 45 to 50 mph a comfortable speed. "It won't go much more than that," he said. "Below 50 mph it's solid with no shimmy," he reports.

"At 55 mph it's really screaming."

Gallagher, who until recently had used a big Oldsmobile sedan as a truck in his real estate business, thought this antique truck might be a way to go for future projects.

"I intend to use it: I don't want a museum piece:"

While driving it around in warm weather, Gallagher sometimes opens the cowl ventilator to cool the cab. If the heat is still unbearable, he can use the thumbscrew at the base of the windshield to crank it open.

The oval mirror, suspended from the frame above the windshield, is unaffected by the open window glass.

The previous owner had converted the windshield wipers, suspended from the top, from vacuum to electrically operated units.

Lately, however, he is beginning to rethink his decision about the daily use of the truck.

There are details n't want to destroy. six finished car five stainless steel the bed floor. And the the single taillight of which are inseparable PLYMOUTH.

Some things are just cious to use daily, he cluded.

Vintage Bentleys in spotlight at Pebble Beach Concours

PEBBLE BEACH CONCOURS D'ELEGANCE

PEBBLE BEACH — Centennial anniversary celebrations for Mercedes and Ford Racing, and a gathering of vintage Bentleys from 1919 to 1931 will highlight the 51st annual Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance on Sunday.

Display classes will include a Mercedes retrospective, celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Mercedes brand with a showcase of approximately 20 exquisite examples of the German marque including a featured Race Car and Passenger Car Display.

Significant vehicles from the Race Car Display include a 1934 Mercedes-Benz W25, 1937 Mercedes-Benz W125,1939 Mercedes-Benz W165 and the 1955 Mercedes-Benz 300SLR Stirling Moss raced to win the Mille Miglia.

The Ford centennial will celebrate with a historical display of cars representing the evolution of Ford's racing prowess through the 20th century.

The exhibit will be anchored by the first Ford race car. Constructed in 1901, the car, driven by Henry Ford himself, won its first and only race, a 10-mile challenge event against Alexander Winton, at the Grosse Pointe Race Track, with an average speed of 44.8 mph.

Among the judged classes, there will be a special focus on vintage Bentleys, the classics designed by British manufacturer Walter Owen Bentley, between the time he founded Bentley Motors Limited in 1919 and its acquisition by Rolls-Royce in 1931.

The Concours will focus on approximately 20 rare vintage Bentleys that have retained their original coach work.

Other special judging classes include:

■ Chrysler Town & Country models from 1941 to 1950, both pre- and post-war vehicles. "The Chrysler Town & Country epitomized the glamor car of its era," explains Concours Chairman Glenn Mounger. Originally conceived as a new kind of upscale station wagon, it eventually evolved into sedan and convertible models which used Honduras mahogany and white ash woods to achieve its unique look and feel.

■ A new class for preserved pre-war cars. "For years there has been a trend toward restoration," Mounger notes, "but increasingly enthusiasts are recognizing the importance of preservation. Preserved cars are historically significant in their own right."

Since 1999, the Concours has presented the FIVA Award to the best preserved car on the field without regard to class. To qualify, a car must be maintained in its original condition and must have minimal, if any, cosmetic restoration.

Sponsoring this Preservation Classs award is Meguiar's, continuing its 100th anniversary celebration as the world's premier surface care manufacturer.

■ For the first time, a class for vintage period hot-rod coupes, showcasing some of the best examples of this genre, which in recent years has become a hot bed for collectors.

This year promises some of the greatest Ferraris ever assembled, representing the quintessential sports car maker's finest examples of elegant styling, Italian design and technical refinement.

Tickets for the weekend event are $100, with children under 12 admitted free. Tickets may be purchased only in advance. Each ticket includes a program, parking and a shuttle ride to the show field.

For ticket information, call the United Way of Monterey County toll-free at 877-693-0009 or go to www.concours-store.com.

capacity of 10,300 pounds.

The Sierra does well in the safety department, too. The front three-point belts are now attached to the seat.

The front doors have roll-formed side-guard beams, plus the truck has been engineered with numerous energy-absorbing materials, including frame rails to telescope on impact to absorb collision energy.

This year's model has larger windshield wipers, brighter halogen head lamps, programmable door locks, daytime running lights, and the limp-home feature which allows driving the vehicle to a service station if there is a loss of engine coolant.

The engineers' top-notch safety job carries over to the four-wheel disc brakes, which are now larger.

With the Active AutoTrac engaged, four-wheel drive automatically kicks in if the driver encounters slippery pavement.

This truck also features a six-speaker sound system with speed-sensitive volume and Theftlock security system, plus a six-CD changer.

Other options: polished aluminum wheels, mirror with compass and temperature, and On-Star communications system.

The Sierra proves that you can have it all under one roof: luxury, spaciousness, comfort, convenience and a full-size truck box.

Just try not to park in tight perpendicular spaces.

...For years I had dreams of stand- ...m the brakes with inadequate ...ts. The mechanical brakes ...d be made to work fairly well ...ired constant adjustment ...never understood. ...h ...tonics actually stopped the car ...emergency by getting it into ...e and slipping the clutch.

Though not as dangerous, starting most any Model A was almost as hard as stopping. Each one seemed to develop its own personality and often the owner, with practice, was the only person who could make the little beauty run. It was an acquired art.

The starter was on the floor. Gas (accelerator) and spark levers were located one on each side of the steering column under the wheel. To start the car, one depressed the starter button with the right foot while ratcheting spark and gas levers up and down until the engine caught.

It was learning the right sequence with these levers, plus judicious use of the manual choke, that was the key to starting the car and seemed to vary from car to car.

As I remember, top speed on an average Model A was close to 60 mph but we never felt the engine would last long running full out. Fifty mph was a more practical cruising speed.

However, cornering ability was another thing in short supply. Taking a corner on two wheels was not just a phrase but a scary and easily achieved maneuver even when only making a quick turn into another street at in-town speeds.

Nevertheless, in those days amongst my peers, a Model A was the only acceptable car to have. For the same price a basically much better car might be available but, though we didn't use the term then, it just wouldn't have been "cool."

Besides, we really liked them and thought they were great cars, even though the gas tank was virtually in your lap. This eliminated the need for a fuel pump as the gas gravitated to the carburetor.

This gas tank location had the added advantage of eliminating the problem of being on the proper side of the gas pump when pulling into a filling station. The fill pipe was located in the center of the cowling just a few inches in front of the windshield.

The heaters and demisting systems never gave any trouble because, like radios, oil pressure gauges, temperature gauges, ash trays and interior lights, they did not exist. The inside of the windshield was kept clear by a swipe with a rag or, more likely, the back of the driver's hand.

The long, stroke engine produced good low speed torque. By slipping the clutch the car could actually be started up and driven away in third (top) gear.

Once a friend who had a much nicer Model A and I met each other coming from opposite directions, we stopped and then eased forward until we were bumper to bumper and started razzing our engines.

After a little clutch slipping, there was a loud bang. We stopped, backed off and his front bumper fell to the pavement. He wasn't very happy but I believe he bolted it back on with little trouble.

December 7th produced gas rationing among other unpleasantness. I never paid off my contract but sold the car to someone who did, which at graduation allowed me to join the U.S. Maritime Service with a clean credit record.

Model A Fords actually became fairly desirable during the war for their perceived good gas mileage.

I still miss that car but I couldn't replace it now for 50 times what I paid for it.

How-to tips for changing spark plugs on newer cars

DON CHAIKIN
Owners Auto Know

Follow these tips on changing today's spark plugs.

Like everything else on your late-model car or truck, spark plugs are infinitely better than those of years ago. Among the changes you'll see in today's spark plug are the use of rare, precious metals on the electrodes.

Some plugs use titanium for longer-than-normal life. Others use iridium.

These changes have increased the price of the typical spark plug but they've also extended its useful life. It's not uncommon for a set of spark plugs to last 50,000 or even 100,000 miles.

However, it's good practice to inspect your engine's plugs once a year or about every 15,000 miles. Even if the plugs are still working fine, they can give you an excellent glimpse into the rest of the engine.

Check the spark plugs only on an engine that is fully cool to the touch. In order to inspect a spark plug, first disconnect the heavy wire that conducts electricity to it, or if your engine is equipped with an ignition coil for each spark plug, remove the coil.

Don't ever just grip the wire and twist and/or yank on it to get it off the plug. You may damage the core of the wire, rendering it useless.

Instead, use an inexpensive spark plug boot puller or spark plug wire removal tool. These come in various styles at the same auto parts store that sells spark plugs.

Getting an individual ignition coil off usually involves undoing a couple of clips or retaining screws and lifting off the coil.

To avoid confusion and problems later, remove only one spark plug wire at a time. If you're faced with a tangle of spark plug wires when the time comes to reconnect them, you may not know which wire goes to which plug.

With the spark plug exposed, blow some compressed air, or blow through a drinking straw, to get any debris away from the base of the spark plug.

To remove the spark plug, you'll need the correct size spark plug socket, attached to a ratchet via an extension.

If you're not sure what size socket you need, check the owner's manual the underhood tune-up decal, or consult with the professional who sells auto parts.

With the socket firmly seated on the steel hex of the spark plug, turn the ratchet counter clockwise and the plug should thread out. As you remove each spark plug, check the end that was in the engine. There you'll find its electrodes.

The center electrode is a metal post surrounded by porcelain. The side electrode is a bent piece of metal connected to the threaded portion of the plug.

The gap between them must be a specific size as dictated by the car maker.

Also carefully inspect the porcelain insulator — which is the part of the spark plug that's outside the engine. Look for cracks or chips or damage to the porcelain. If you find any damage, replace the plug.

The electrodes should have a light coating of golden brown. If the plug is sooty, caked with carbon, blistered white or otherwise looks suspect, have the engine checked by a qualified professional.

If all is well, check the size of the gap with a special spark plug gap gauge.

If the gap needs to be adjusted bend — slightly and carefully — the side electrode. Do not try to file the center electrode.

To reinstall the plug, or to install a brand new one, place the plug in the spark plug socket and thread it into its hole.

First, however, put a dab of [illegible] compound (available at auto parts [illegible] on the plug's threads to make [illegible] inspection easier one year from [illegible].

Thread the plug in by hand [illegible] or the extension without the [illegible] die.

Once the spark plug is [illegible] in, attach the ratchet [illegible] down. Do not overtighten [illegible].

Before reattaching [illegible] silicone inside the boot or [illegible] cial dielectric grease inside [illegible] water and make future [illegible].

Healthcare

Some health systems seem to think progress preempts personal attention. We don't. We think progress is made when patients feel they have a life-long partner in their community health care provider. It's what we're most proud of at John Muir/Mt. Diablo Health System. It's why we're one of the most well-respected, well-established health systems in the area. And why more and more professionals are attracted to our priorities.

Where every patient is surrounded by excellence.

GENTERIC

The Next Generation of Gene Therapy and Drug Delivery Technology

Genteric, Inc. is a rapidly growing biopharmaceutical company in Alameda. We develop gene-based methods to treat human diseases. Genteric is seeking candidates to join an experienced Gene Therapy research team.

We currently have the following openings:

Facilities Manager

Genteric, Inc., a leading biotech company, is currently planning a new 32,000 sq ft research and corporate facility in Alameda. The company is seeking an experienced individual to oversee the new construction and be responsible for the ongoing operation and maintenance of the finished facility.

Primary responsibilities will include
- Managing the design, planning and construction of the build out.
- Maintenance of equipment, machinery and buildings
- Developing and administering budgets, schedules and performance requirements and ensuring these requirements are met
- Interacting with and reporting regularly to senior management

Individual should have prior biotech industry facilities experience. Must be skilled at meeting time schedules and effectively resolve problems.

Please e-mail resume and cover letter to hr@genteric.com (please include "Attn: Facilities Mgr." in the subject line).

Gene Therapy Program Leader

Genteric seeks an innovative scientist, preferably with experience in research management in biotech or pharma, to lead an exciting, ongoing research group developing on oral gene delivery platform. Genteric recently received patent protection for this technology. This person could have experience in any relevant field, including but not limited to intestinal biology, oral drug formulation, non-viral gene delivery etc. Individual would be part of an enthusiastic team working on a number of platforms, which utilize non-systemic gene therapy for the delivery of systemic protein drugs.

Please e-mail resume and cover letter to hr@genteric.com (please include "Attn: GT Leader" in the subject line).

Chemistry/Formulation Group Leader

Genteric seeks a senior scientist with experience in chemistry/drug formulation, particularly in relation to delivery of macromolecules, to lead a group involved in formulation on non-viral DNA for gene delivery in vivo. The Genteric platforms utilize non-systemic routes for the delivery of genes, which give rise to systemic proteins. This person would ideally have experience in biotech or pharma and highly be motivated to develop drugs for clinical and commercial purposes.

Please e-mail resume and cover letter to hr@genteric.com (include "Attn Chem Leader" in the subject line).

Research Associate/Synthetic Chemist

Individual will work as part of a research team in all aspects of the development of novel gene delivery systems. The qualified individual will conduct multi-step synthesis for purification, characterization, and formulation of synthetic targets. Candidate should have BS or MS in Synthetic Chemistry. At least 2 years laboratory experience in organic chemistry using modern synthetic and chromatographic techniques is required. Candidates should have strong interpersonal and organizational skills.

Please e-mail resume and cover letter to hr@genteric.com (include "Attn RA SynChem" in the subject line).

Research Associate--QPCR

We are seeking a candidate for a Research Associate position in our Molecular Biology Group. This position offers an opportunity to be part of a team that is developing "state-of-the-art" analytical methods to advance Genteric's product development program. In particular, the candidate will participate in using QPCR technologies to determine in vivo distribution and expression of gene therapy vectors.

Position requires a BA in Biology, Molecular Biology, or related sciences with a minimum of two years of experience in molecular cloning, PCR, and DNA/RNA isolation. Successful candidate will have significant experience in standard Molecular Biology techniques. Preference will be given to candidates with QPCR experience. The position requires excellent verbal and written communication skills, and strong interpersonal skills that allow productive Team interaction.

Please e-mail resume and cover letter to hr@genteric.com (include "Attn RA QPCR" in the subject line).

Genteric Inc. offers a vibrant work experience, competitive salary with stock options and a comprehensive benefits package. Send all resumes by e-mail to hr@genteric.com. Please use the appropriate "Attn:" address in the subject line.

Fresh figs make a sweet pizza-with-a-difference

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pizza fans are legion. But few have tried them with this unconventional variation — fresh fig dessert pizza, a lighthearted surprise with which to end a summer meal.

It makes creative use of the figs now in season, and is easy to prepare. Note that the figs are not cooked, although the "pizza" base is. The base is made of sugar cookie dough, baked crisp and covered with cream-cheese mixture, then topped with figs. Serve with ice cream or whipped cream for a special treat.

For all four varieties

There are four major varieties of fresh figs commonly sold in markets, and you may like to do a taste test to find out which you like best:

- Calimyrna figs are large, with greenish-yellow skin, pale flesh and a sweet, nutty flavor.
- Mission figs. These are purple to black in color with pink flesh, and very fine seeds.
- Kadota figs. Kadotas are small, light-skinned, with a creamy amber color when ripe. They have hardly any seeds and they are a favorite for canning and preserving.
- Brown Turkey variety. These pear-shaped beauties have brown or purple skin and a rosy flesh. They're recommended for eating as a fresh fruit or using in cooked dishes but not for drying.

Figs are quite perishable and should be used soon after they're bought, or stored in the refrigerator for only two or three days.

Fresh Fig Dessert Pizza

(Preparation 45 to 60 minutes, baking time 30 minutes)

18-ounce package prepared sugar cookie dough
4 ounces cream cheese, softened
¼ cup mascarpone or sour cream
1 egg
1 pound firm, ripe fresh figs (about 8 large), quartered
¼ cup currant or apple jelly
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice

Preheat oven to 325 F.

Slice and place the cookie dough in a single layer on a 12-inch pizza pan. Allow to stand for a few minutes at room temperature until softened. Flour hands generously and press dough slices together evenly to about ¼ inch thick, leaving ½-inch raised edges all around. Bake at 325 F for 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Combine cream cheese, mascarpone and egg in a small bowl. Beat until smooth. Spread evenly over crust except on edges. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until filling is set and lightly browned. Cool.

Just before serving, arrange fig quarters on top. Melt jelly with lemon juice in a small saucepan over low heat and brush onto figs. Cut into wedges.

Makes 8 servings.

Recipe from California Fresh Fig Growers Association.

ASSOCIATED PRESS/ CALIFORNIA FRESH FIG GROWERS ASSN.

FRESH FIG DESSERT PIZZA IS A LIGHT-HEARTED surprise to put before your guests after they've enjoyed a backyard summer meal. The dish makes a creative use of figs and is easy to prepare. Don't cook the figs, just the "pizza" base, which is made of sugar cookie dough, baked crisp and covered with a cream-cheese mixture. Serve with ice cream or whipped cream for a special treat.

A shopper's guide to cinnamon types

KRISTIN EDDY
KNIGHT RIDDER

Cinnamon-producing trees have characteristics that differ according to the area to which they are native. Some types resemble thick-stemmed bushes 6 feet to 10 feet tall, while others grow as large as 5 feet in girth and 50 feet in height.

Preparation for market

At harvest, the bark is slit and stripped off both trunks and branches. It then curls up tightly, making those long, slender quills that we know as cinnamon sticks.

In addition, each producing area sends quantities of bark that were broken at the harvest, or during the cleaning or packing process.

Graded bark

Cinnamon barks are graded largely on their essential oil content; the higher the oil content, the more intense the aroma and flavor. As with other spices, cinnamon retains these traits longer in its whole form, so grinding is always done after it gets to the United States. At home, asways store ground or stick cinnamon in tightly sealed jars away from heat and light.

Most of the cinnamon used in the United States is derived from the cassia family of cinnamon, native to Vietnam, China and Indonesia.

Cassia cinnamon produces a reddish brown powder with a strong aroma and flavor.

Here are the major types of cinnamon, according to The American Spice Trade Association:

■ Vietnamese or Chinese cinnamon (cassia): This has traditionally been considered the finest quality cinnamon because its oil content runs higher on average than that of other types. It has a distinctly sweet flavor and is reddish brown.

■ Chinese cinnamon (cassia): These barks come from the southeastern part of China within a few hundred miles of the Vietnamese border, so they share similar characteristics with Vietnamese cinnamon.

They are, however, lower in essential oil and therefore are not as strongly flavored. They tend to be more of a true brown color than a reddish brown.

■ Indonesian cinnamon (cassia): This comes from the mountainous areas on the island of Sumatra. One of the varieties, Korintje, comes from a higher altitude and has a deep reddish brown color and better flavor. The second variety, Vera, is lighter in color and less intense.

■ Ceylon cinnamon: This comes from the island of Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon). The majority of Ceylon cinnamon that comes into the U.S. is re-exported to Mexico, Central America and South America. Of the negligible amount used in this country, most is sold in stick form.

This and other Ceylon-type cinnamons generally are low in volatile oils and weaker in flavor. They may be used as a base for cinnamon blends.

BOB FILA/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

A VIETNAMESE FARMER CUTS BARK FROM A CINNAMON TREE in the northern highlands the country's border with China. At harvest, the bark is slit and stripped off trunks and branches then curls up tightly, making those long, slender quills that we know as cinnamon sticks.

BOB FILA/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

UNTIL RECENTLY AMERICAN SPICE COMPANIES have gotten cassia cinnamon in its reddish brown powder form from Indonesia and China. Ceylonese cinnamons is rarely found in the U.S.

Ade in the shade

CATHY THOMAS
THE ORANGE COUNTY REG STER (KRT)

Cut a lemon and geysers of juice spit in all directions — to hand, to arm, to unguarded eye. This pucker-packed, near-clear liquid is redolent with citrus perfume and filled with sour culinary potential.

Squeeze that lemon and a gentle squirt-like moan produces more juices, with seeds and pulp swimming in its generous acidic pool.

Lemon juice is friend to fish, fowl and fruit tart alike. But it's the beverage made with sweetened juice and water that quenches our hot-weather thirst. Yes, there's no disputing America's summertime love affair with icy lemonade.

Homemade lemonade is generally much better than store-bought prepared lemonade, made-from-frozen-concentrate lemonades, or, heaven forbid, beverages made from powdered "lemonade" mixes.

Those alternatives can be too sweet for my palate. Lacking lemon loyalty, some of them taste artificial, almost "chemical," colored like a yellow taxi, not the inside of a lemon.

Making lemonade from scratch is no big deal. When I was a kid, making refreshing lemonade meant revenue as well as refreshment. In those sun-soaked San Fernando Valley summers, front-yard lemonade sales were brisk. The formula was simple enough: Mix 1 cup fresh lemon juice with ¾ cup sugar, then stir until sugar dissolved and add 4 cups water and ice. Kah-ching. Kah-ching.

For a rosy tint, I'd add a drop or two of red food coloring or a splash of cranberry juice. As an adult I add either pomegranate syrup or grenadine.But as with most things in the culinary world, there are myriad lemonade recipes, techniques and variations. My kid-style beverage was just the tip of the old lemonade ice cube.

And yes, you can make lemonade ice cubes. Michelle Urvater, cookbook author and host of the TV Food Network's "Cooking, Monday to Friday" show, likes to make ice cubes from her concentrated lemonade mixture; that way, if and when they melt, they won't dilute her delectable lemonade.

Urvater's lemonade is based on a syrup that starts with lemon zest (colored part of peel), sugar and a little water. The ingredients are boiled for 30 seconds and a generous amount of lemon juice is added. It's stored in the refrigerator and can be mixed on an as-needed basis, ¼ cup at a time, with either water or mineral water.

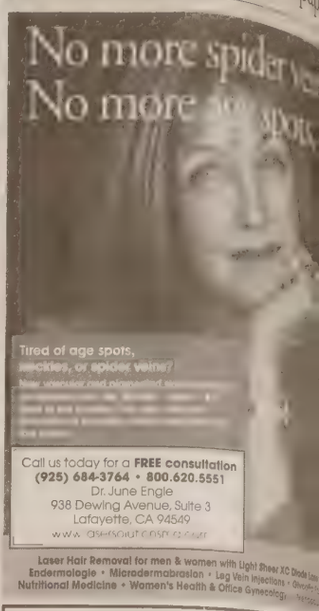

Irresistible, but those perfection-driven writers at Cook's Illustrated magazine (July 1998, by author Adam Ried) take a different preparation approach. Searching for a "full, complex lemon flavor," they borrowed an Amish method, a technique that does away with the juicer.

Lemon slices and sugar are mashed with a potato masher or large wooden spoon until they give up their juices and the sugar dissolves, about four minutes. Strained, the liquid is combined with cold water.The flavor is delicious because the fragrant oils from the citrus skin are released into the liquid during the "bruising" and quasi-mashing.

Take your pick. Or augment your lemonade with berries or mint. They're all sensational sweet-sour thirst relievers.

Wine of the week

1998 Monterra Syrah, Monterey ($14)

BY MICHAEL DRESSER
BALTIMORE SUN

This lush, ripe red wine is a good approximation of the style of the fine wines of France's Rhone Valley. Quite full-bodied, it has generous flavors of black-berries, chocolate, herbs and grilled meat. Its lush, soft tex-ture makes it immediately appeal-ing, but there's plenty of tannic backbone to keep it developing over five to 10 years. Serve with hearty red meat or pasta dishes.

Free pamphlet helps women get up on wine

BY FRED TASKER
KNIGHT RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

Is wine just a guy thing? It shouldn't be, but a lot of people think it is, complains Signe Mayo, winemaker for Meridian Vineyards. In a survey by the Cali-fornia winery, 61 percent said most people assume men know more about wine than women, but only 1 percent thought the assumption was really true.

So Meridian has come out with a free pamphlet titled "Seven Things Every Gal Should Know About Ordering Wine." It's avail-able at www.meridianvineyards.com or by writing to Meridian Vineyards Brochure, P.O. Box 111, St. Helena, Calif., 94574.
